Fights Break Out in Crowd of 40,000

Trance 'Carries' Medium to Planet

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) Fighting among spectators and believers broke out here when several mediums at a spiritualist meeting went into a trance during which they said they visited another planet.

Fist-fights took place among some of the 40,000 persons crammed into a stadium here for the meeting and into adjacent streets.

Argentine police clashed with gate-crashers and arrested 12 persons from a group shouting "clowns, fake."

One medium describing his extra-terrestrial trip said the planet they visited was inhabited by at least one human-type couple.

Another medium said he "brought back" a message from Christ consisting of greetings to the spiritualists.

The meeting, also broadcast by a local radio station, was organized Sunday night by a Buenos Aires "scientific school" of parapsychology.

Webster's New Collegiate dictionary defines parapsychology as "a branch of psychology concerned with the investigation of evidence for telepathy, clairvoyance, thought transference, and the like."

Jet On Fire Sheds Debris Lands with 153

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—A jet airliner with 153 persons aboard caught fire moments after takeoff Monday. It trailed burning debris including the outboard engine and one-third of the wing—across the heavily-populated San Francisco Peninsula before landing safely here.

One man was injured but one passenger was taken to a hospital for a checkup.

LOST ENGINE
The Hawaii-bound Pan-American World Airways jet lost its right outboard engine after taking off from San Francisco International Airport at 2:35 p.m.

While hundreds watched, the stricken Boeing 747 dropped a burning engine and wing fragments as it neared the Pacific shore.

WING BREAKS
The pilot, Capt. C. H. Kimes, said the right wing from the outboard engine to the tip fell off. The engine plunged through the roof of a cabinet shop in San Bruno, narrowly missing several workers.

There were no injuries on the ground.

Kimes said the fire broke out when the plane was 300-400 feet off the runway.

"I had no idea what caused it," he said. "It could have been a bird flying into the engine intake or an engine failure."

WRECKED PLANE
Kimes said he eventually nursed the staggering jet—laden with 143 passengers and a crew of 10—up to 1,000 feet "and could have gone higher, but the integrity of the wing was in question."

For 12 hair-raising minutes the craft circled over the Pacific, turned inland toward the base 45 miles northwest of San Francisco. The landing gear failed to lower on the first approach and Kimes had to use manual controls to lower it.

Slow Roads

VANCOUVER (CP)—The U.S. is considering setting up a second system of first-class highways for the more leisurely driver, supplementing the present continental-wide tarmac-tarmac freeway system, Earl A. Bogue of Washington, supervising landscape architect for the U.S. National Parks Service, said Monday.

Seattle Wins

U.S. Gets Whale B.C. Won't Bid

RECREATION MINISTER KENNETH KIERMAN Monday refused a plea to join the bidding in the international whale sale at Nantux.

Mr. Kierman had received a telegram from Homer Stevens of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, asking the provincial government to step the trapped killer whale from being sold to U.S. interests.

But Mr. Kierman said, "I wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole," as the sale of the beast was reported.

SEE PROBLEM
Edward Griffin of Seattle marine aquarium paid a reported $2,000 cash for the killer on "as is" basis, and now it's his problem as far as capturing William Lechobit, and Robert McCarvey are concerned.

They had had quite enough of the whale by the time they said it Monday. It had gone through scores of salmon as it circled in its net cage on a reef near Nantux, and then the telegram from the union had further upset matters.

WRONG APPROACH
Mr. Kierman criticized the fishermen for deciding to dispose of their catch by public auction. "This is the wrong approach entirely," said Mr. Kierman. "I'll have no part of any auction sale of my whale."

The two fishermen had steadfastly refused all offers, holding representatives from the Vancouver aquarium, Los Angeles Marineland, and Victoria's Undersea Gardens at arm's length as they sought to raise the price.

ONE ESCAPED
At first they demanded $50,000 for two whales which were trapped in their nets accidentally, but the price dropped when one escaped.

Then Marineland dropped out of the bidding due to the difficulties of getting the animal from Nantux to Los Angeles. At this stage the Undersea Gardens and Vancouver Aquarium offered $3,000, upon the whale's safe arrival, but it was turned down in favor of the Seattle bid.

HELP PLEDGED
Mr. Griffin has asked Dr. Murray Newman of the Vancouver Aquarium to help him in constructing a temporary pen at Nantux, and Dr. Newman said he will do "whatever I can."

Said Dr. Newman, "I am disappointed we didn't get it, but a great responsibility has been lifted from our shoulders."

RCMP B.C. Signs Pact

B.C. has signed an agreement with Ottawa for extension of the present agreement for RCMP services in the province until March 31, 1966.

Attorney-General Bennett said the extension is based on the existing formula. The federal government some months ago proposed a change in formula which would have sharply increased the provincial share of RCMP costs.

Ottawa Slights U.K.'s Minister

By FRASER KELLY

OTTAWA—The great pressure on the United States and Britain to solve their balance of payment problems could seriously harm the underdeveloped nations of the world, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer said here Monday.

James Callaghan, who has been meeting with Canadian officials here for two days, commented on economic pop talk and some actual dodging of a news conference.

WOULDN'T BITE
He refused to be thrown into the controversy swirling around the future of Canadian officials to meet him at Uplands Airport when he arrived Saturday.

He said he is "quite happy and making no complaints" about his reception here.

While admitting that an embittered minister had met him, he smiled and said: "I didn't ask for one."

EMBARRASSED
In the Commons an embarrassed acting prime minister, Paul Martin, and Finance Minister Walter Gordon, ducked opposition questions about the diplomatic faux pas.

Mr. Callaghan, who will now visit Washington, stressed that the British economy is basically strong and getting stronger.

"The only way the British are talked about and not the basic strength," he said.

WINNING FIGHT?
He said Britain's balance of payments problem (the spread between the value of exports and imports) is being solved.

"British exports are up four per cent this year and its imports are down," he said. "We're determined to get our balance of payments right throughout the world."

He said the recently announced trade expansion program with Canada was an example of the efforts being made by the British labor government to "offset this habitual imbalance."

But he stressed several times that if his country and the U.S. presented too hard to correct their balance (by decreasing

To Be Tabled

Report In By Dorion

Pearson Back, Happy

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion report on allegations of attempted bribery and coercion against substantial aides was turned over to Acting Prime Minister Martin late Monday.

An official of the prime minister's office said the federal cabinet will meet this morning to discuss publication of the report and tabling of it in the Commons.

GOES TO CLERK
The report, signed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorn of the Quebec Superior Court, was handed over by commission counsel Andre Desjardins and Mr. Martin in turn gave it to the acting clerk of the Privy Council.

Official handing over of the report occurred just before 4:45 p.m. EDT after the Commons daily question period ended.

During the question period, Mr. Martin said the report had not yet been received by the government.

TONY QUER
In the Commons, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked Mr. Martin whether the acting prime minister could confirm newspaper stories Chief Justice Dorion's report would be made available at 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

AFTER RECESS
Did that mean it wouldn't be tabled in the Commons until after a summer recess due to start about Wednesday, Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

Mr. Martin said there was no basis for the suggestion it wouldn't be tabled before the recess.

ARRIVED EARLY
The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorn of Quebec Superior Court was handed to Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin almost four hours before Mr. Pearson's return.

Mr. Pearson said he was happy the report, dealing with charges of attempted bribery and influence peddling against federal ministerial aides, was waiting for him on his return.

After a preliminary look through it, he said he would discuss the report at a cabinet meeting called for 10 a.m. today. He did not know when it would be tabled.

Tax Bill Passes

Liberals Survive Easily

OTTAWA (CP)—With surprising ease, the Liberal minority government survived a showdown vote Monday on its controversial tax changes affecting magazines and newspapers.

By a vote of 142 to 73, the Liberals, with help from two Social Credit MPs and two independents, voted down a New Democratic amendment which would have stalled final approval of the legislation—and possibly brought down the government.

With the amendment out of the way, the bill quickly received final Commons approval and now heads to the Senate.

ON AMENDMENT
The vote, which loomed for a time as a possible cliffhanger, came on an amendment by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Whitby North Centre) to send the 23-clause income tax bill back to committee of the House to reconsider the particular section dealing with newspapers and magazines.

It provides that advertising expenditure in any publication aimed at the Canadian market and with more than 25 per cent foreign ownership be disallowed as a deductible tax expense.

TO AID MAGAZINES
The proposal, part of Finance Minister Gordon's budget, is designed to aid Canadian magazines against foreign competition and to guard against foreign takeovers of Canadian daily newspapers.

As indicated Friday when Mr. Knowles introduced his amendment, all four opposition parties—or parts of them—combined against the government.

GRITS RALLY
The amendment was supported by 57 Conservatives, 13 New Democrats, six Creditites and two Social Credit members—party leader Thompson and Guy Marcoux (Quebec—Montmorency). They weren't enough, however, to turn back the Liberals aided by Social Credit MPs Bert Lebow (Carleton Place) and H. A. Olson (Medicine Hat).

Life Ends Despite Pig Liver

BOSTON (UPI)—A 34-year-old woman kept alive for 18 days with the aid of a pig's liver died Monday of a gastro-intestinal hemorrhage.

Dr. William V. McDermott Jr., chief of the Harvard surgical unit at Boston City Hospital, said the woman began to fail early in the day and failed to respond to "every possible practical medical aid and surgical technique."

The woman, whose identity was never disclosed, had undergone five porcine liver perfusions in which her blood was pumped through the liver of a dead pig. Her own liver had ceased to function.

SET NEW RECORD
The 18 days she remained alive after entering the hospital near death was a medical record for the new technique. In six previous attempts to save life with the pig's liver technique, no patient had survived longer than 12 days.

During her fight for life, the woman's condition had improved to the point where she was able to watch television, eat solid foods and sit up in bed.

"Unfortunately, and in spite of the temporary improvement which resulted from the support of the porcine liver perfusions, the patient's own liver could not resume sufficient function," Dr. McDermott said.

Italian Surprise

Castro Treasures Prove to Be Junk

OMILAN, Italy (UPI)—A shipment of art "treasures" belonging to Cuban dictator Fidel Castro has turned out to be "a bunch of worthless junk," customs officials said Monday.

The so-called treasure chest was shipped from Cuba to Iran on art dealer Mahmud Mowizadeh here. Customs held up the shipment for some time and it was finally opened by guards Monday while representatives of the Italian government's fine arts commission watched.

Mowizadeh was not present. His son said the art dealer was out of town. Mowizadeh had said earlier he did not believe the shipment was of any exceptional value.

However, it appeared to be even less than the art broker had expected. The customs office said the shipment contained pieces of marble, chalk, a vase with a price of four dollars marked on the bottom "and even a stove." There were also some silver pieces and silver-plated goods "but nothing exceptional," officials said.

Fishermen Reject Price
VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's more than 3,000 salmon net fishermen have rejected the latest prices offered by the fisheries association of B.C. for the next two years.

The negotiating committee of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (U.F.A.W.), in making the announcement Monday, said talks will be resumed Wednesday with the association, representing the pecking companies.

TAIPEI (AP)—Thousands of persons were left homeless in south Formosa Sunday by floods caused by torrential rain.

Teen-Age Sex Case

Former Minister Granted Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal granted a new appeal Monday to Ronald Horthburn, 44, a former United Church minister at Chatham, Ont., against a conviction on five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

The court did not set a date, but Horthburn's lawyer, Charles Dubin of Toronto, said the appeal will be argued before the court "sometime in the fall."

Horthburn was sentenced to a year in prison Nov. 14, 1964, after a trial in Chatham where 14 teen-agers testified he aided them in having sexual intercourse in Park Street United Church where he was minister.

The new appeal will be the former minister's second attempt at a retrial. His first appeal was granted Nov. 26, 1964, and denied June 25, 1965, by Mr. Justice Eric Moorhouse of the Ontario Supreme Court after two days of argument.

Horthburn's name was dropped at his own request from the ministerial roll of the United Church of Canada at the annual conference in London, Ont., June 5.

'NOT SEX CASE'
Mr. Dubin asked for the new appeal on the grounds "the case contained points of law suspect to the Juvenile Delinquency Act which should be examined by the court."

"This is not a sex case and I believe a new appeal could be granted on corroboration as a point of law."

Granting the new appeal, Chief Justice Dana Porter described the case as unique and said:

"I don't believe a case of this nature has ever been heard before the courts and I think an appeal should be given."

Vets' Raise Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill authorizing a 10-per-cent increase in war veterans' allowances received final approval in the Commons Monday night.

The increase is retroactive to last Sept. 1 when it was first announced. About 80,000 veterans, widows and orphans now get $81,500,000 a year in allowances.

Three Records Set

Atlantic Solo Flight Proves Hair-Raising

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—U.S. pilot Benjamin Games, 41, arrived here Monday after a hair-raising solo flight across the Atlantic during which he is believed to have set three records for single-engine amphibious planes.

Games flew the four-seater from Ellbert, Ind., via Boston, St. Pierre, St. Pierre Miquelon off Newfoundland, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland.

"I'm not a professional pilot," said Games. "I'm a sort of professional amateur." His mission was to bring the small flying boat here for Australian William Riley. "He delivered it all right," said Riley, "but what a flight."

It's one of the most exciting flights I ever heard of. "From what I can tell, Ben's broken three world records for this type of plane. "He flew 1,000 miles non-stop from Boston to St. Pierre. Continued on Page 2

Atlantic Solo Flight Proves Hair-Raising

In 11 hours 30 minutes. We'll have to have all this confirmed, but I think the previous long-distance solo flight for this sort of plane was 890 miles."

Games flew a Lake LA-4 single pumper flying boat.

Riley said the second record set by Games was one of seven hours 15 minutes for the 240-mile flight from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Prestwick, Scotland. He said he was certain the previous record for this distance was 11 hours 45 minutes.

The third record was one of low altitude.

"Because of ice storms and really foul weather, he had to fly over low distances right down on the sea, almost touching it at times," he said.

Games left Indiana on June 18 and flew out of Boston the next day. From St. Pierre he flew into Narsarsuaq, Greenland, with fuel for only 30 minutes left in his tank.

He said he encountered at times temperatures of 41 degrees below zero.

"On top of everything else," he went on, "I got sick on some food at Narsarsuaq. But I was up in the air by this time, there was another ice storm and, well, I had to press on."

He said he landed next at Julianahab, Greenland, where he refueled.

Then came the worst part, said Games. "Flying in a cold like I've never felt before. I landed next, beside a rock called Kulusuk, and right beside it was an iceberg."

Games left Indiana on June 18 and flew out of Boston the

"I was pretty much flying blind by then," explained the pilot, a U.S. air force pilot from the Second World War and the Korean war, "but somehow I got through."

In Washington, the National Aeronautic Association said the flight would not stand as an official record of any kind, since it was not monitored by the NAA or any other part of the International Aeronautic Federation.

The NAA said the current distance solo record for this type of aircraft is 833 miles, set last Sept. 2 by George L. Hunt, also in a Lake LA-4, on a flight from Reykjavik to Belfast, Ireland.

The agency has no record category in the area of low-altitude flight.

Among the key factors in the outcome was the absence of 24 Conservatives.

Standings in the Commons at full strength are: Liberals 128, including the Speaker; Conservatives 52; New Democrats 12; Creditists 13; Social Credit 9; Independent 2. There is one vacancy in the 265-seat House.

REMOVAL BOUGHT

Mr. Knowles' amendment called for reconsideration of the entire clause dealing with newspapers and magazines. In introducing it, however, the veteran New Democrat specified his group specifically wanted removal of the exemption provided for the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest, both foreign-owned.

As the division bells summoned members to the chamber, rumour for more than 20 minutes, there was some doubt whether the life of the government was actually at stake in the roll-call of MPs.

The amendment in itself was simply a procedural one, referring the bill back to committee where it might not necessarily have been changed. But some members argued it at least implied changes in the proposals on which Mr. Gordon had said the government would "stand or fall."

As well as the magazine and newspaper provisions, the legislation also embodies a 20-per-cent cut in personal income taxes effective July 1.

Almost all the fire, however, was centred on the one clause dealing with publications.

PROVISIONS ATTACKED

The magazine provisions were attacked by most opposition spokesmen over the exemption for Time and Reader's Digest whose Canadian editions claim more than 50 per cent of magazine advertising in this country.

The Conservatives, in particular, also hammered at the newspaper measure, taking up the cry by many newspapers themselves that the proposals involve an infringement on freedom of the press.

"BAD BILL"

Before the vote, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker reiterated his stand: "This is a bad bill."

The newspaper provision was a serious infringement on press freedom that might not stand up in court in face of the bill of rights, he said. As for the magazine measure, it would exempt a publication like Time which had "elevated itself to so interpret the news as to direct Canadian thinking."

"This is not a Canadian magazine. It has those three or four pages (of a Canadian section) that make it a counterfeit in trying to be Canadian."

QUESTION ASKED

Mr. Diefenbaker said he has seen no evidence anyone wants the newspaper measure. Why was it introduced when no newspaper in the country asked for it?

Dr. Marcoux split with his so-called colleagues and declared his support for the amendment. The government had not backed up the decision to exempt Time

RED CARPET

Nevertheless the next Canadian minister to visit Paris—Deputy Minister Paul Hellyer—was given the full red carpet treatment.

British officials here refused to comment on this latest incident except to confirm they "didn't see" any Canadian well-comers.

"They may have arrived after we left, but they certainly weren't there when we were," one said.

When Pop Bottles Become Lethal Booby Traps

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

A thousand years ago, or so it seems, when I was in college, the boys in one fraternity house accumulated enough money to buy a bottle of bottled Scotch whisky. This was back in the Big Depression Days. They didn't have enough cash left for some soda, but they found a half-full bottle hidden in somebody's closet.

It was flat—not a bubble in the bottle, but they used it anyway. And what a concoction it was, because it wasn't soda in the soda bottle. It was some hoarded gin.

I mention this fascinating bit of anecdote here to point out that it really is dangerous to use pop, soda, or milk bottles for liquids other than the ones they are supposed to contain.

It can be much more perilous—although making Scotch and hot tub gin sounds bad enough—if you put gasoline, paint-thinner, insect spray or other such stuff in a pop bottle.

Using such odd bottles to store things is a not inconsequential means of poisoning ourselves, children, friends, neighbors and employers. But mostly our children—young ones.

This has been stressed time after time by health authorities trying to cut down the dreadful toll of poisoned children, but for one reason or another people don't seem to believe it. Or maybe they believe it, but not deeply enough to do anything about it.

The average toddler is an incorrigible adventurer who wants to play with, taste, spill or drink anything he finds in a bottle. If it tastes bad enough, he may not drink very much, but even part of a swallow can make him very sick.

If a bunch of college students won't take the trouble to find out in advance whether a soda bottle contains gin or soda, how can you expect a two-year-old or a five-year-old to make sure that a pop bottle isn't full of bleach, insect spray, turpentine, gasoline or disinfectant?

They DO make this mistake, day after day, and some of them die because of it.

So don't use bottles for dangerous things; keep all dangerous substances well out of reach of babies; remember that they start getting into things before they are a year old.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a mole (concealer) removed from my face four months ago. It has healed up but the scar has a hard place in the middle and it is sore to touch. Will this scar eventually leave or does it mean the cancer is still there? —SARA, L.B.

Removal of this cancer by surgery is usually successful if it is done before the cancer has spread—and this usually is the case. Some scarring can be expected in the scar, but for your peace of mind, as well as a means of playing safe, report this to the doctor who removed the mole. I doubt if you have much reason to worry, but the old rule of better safe than sorry is a good one.

Ale is not another name for beer.

(It's brewed with a twist.)

We brew Ale that way on purpose. We use different ingredients. A different recipe. For a very different flavour. Would we like you to switch from beer to Ale? Certainly not. (We brew some pretty fine beers, too.) There's room in your fridge for both—and a time for each. Which times are Ale times for you? No one can say for sure. But think of the fun you'll have finding out.

Queen Tells of Betrothal

From Reuters-AP

THE HAGUE (CP) — Queen Juliana of The Netherlands announced Monday the engagement of her eldest daughter, Princess Beatrix, to Claus von Amsterg, a controversial West German diplomat with a Hitler youth background.

At a press conference just before the announcement, the 27-year-old princess, with von Amsterg beside her, appealed for "time and trust" from the Dutch people.

Beatrix set no date for the wedding. Informants in The Hague, the seat of government, said it probably will be in April. By then, von Amsterg will be a Dutch citizen.

Before the wedding, the Queen will make von Amsterg, who is of minor German nobility, a "prince of The Netherlands." With this title he will receive an annual income of 300,000 guilders ($94,000) a year.

As a deputy chief in the African section of the West German foreign ministry, von Amsterg now earns the equivalent of $160 a week. But he apparently has outside income.

Beatrix told reporters that if the Dutch government had not approved her engagement to the 35-year-old diplomat she would not have gone through with it.

Last year, Beatrix's 25-year-old sister, Princess Irene, went ahead with her marriage to Prince Carlos Hugo of Bourbon-Parma, Carlist claimant to the Spanish throne, and thereby lost her right of succession to the Dutch throne.

Irene's marriage in April, 1964, involving her conversion to Roman Catholicism from Protestantism, was surrounded in controversy.

Both Beatrix and von Amsterg are Protestants.

Queen Juliana, making the formal engagement announcement on radio and television after weeks of rumor and controversy, said she and her husband, Prince Bernhard, himself a German, are very happy that Princess Beatrix chose von Amsterg.

"This is the choice of her heart, and from a human point of view we believe it is an excellent one," the queen said. She said the young couple, like ourselves, were very clearly aware of the doubts, and even the resistance, which their engagement might arouse among many people.

"Yet they finally felt the objections should not be allowed to outbalance their love," she added.

BEATRIX

The Common Touch

By United Press International
Crown Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands is 25, tall, blonde and blue-eyed. She modestly claims no beauty.

Beatrix rides and skis well, plays a good game of tennis and likes to sail and to drive fast cars.

ENJOYS LIFE

She enjoys the good things of life. Beatrix lives in a small colonial castle which cost $200,000 to redecorate.

But she also has the common touch. A few weeks ago, the princess disguised herself in a Salvation Army uniform and sold copies of the organization's magazine in some of Amsterdam's seamy sections.

Beatrix has been preparing herself for the moment when she must succeed her mother,

CLAUS

Anti-Nazi Hitler Youth

By United Press International
Claus Von Amsterg is a Prince charming with a past. He is tall, dark-haired and handsome, comes from a patrician German family and is a successful diplomat.

But like his country, von Amsterg's past is tinged with Adolf Hitler's infamous Third Reich.

Von Amsterg, 35, was a member of the Hitler Youth Movement and served in the German army during the final days of the Second World War.

Von Amsterg's father, a stout anti-Nazi who died 12 years ago at 68, served as an officer in the German First World War. Lettow-Vorbeck guerrilla expedition that held a larger British force at bay throughout the fighting in Africa. The Amstergs always have had a fondness for Africa.

When Hitler began his rise to power, Claus' father took his family back to Africa. There he raised Claus' six sisters. But Claus, the only son and family darling, was dispatched back to Germany in the 1930s to be educated under the care of a grandmother. It was the return from Africa that gave Claus his past.

He was enrolled in the "Baltic School" at the hamlet of Eastrop, now in Communist East Germany. It was a school for Prussian nobility. The Nazi regime forced all students into the Hitler Youth organization. But former classmates have told UPI Claus gloried in a past for anti-Nazi activity of a school-boy type.

Claus began thinking of Beatrix when he drove his blue sports car to a noble wedding at the German town of Berlinberg. Beatrix was there.

Five times Claus journeyed to Holland. Each time he used a different name. They met at the Swiss ski resort of Gstaad and not even Claus' family knew. But then a photographer snapped a picture of the Crown Princess and a tall man strolling in a garden. The secret was out. And so was Amsterg's past.

These other changes also were announced: State Minister Ferenc Mucenich is retiring from the government because of old age.

Deputy Premier Janos Papp resigned and will take over as First Secretary of the Regional Vengprem (Central Hungary) communist party organization.

Trade union president Miklos Somogyi was retired on pension and replaced by Janos Bruty.

Zoltan Komocsa, editor of the Communist Party newspaper Nepezhadag, was appointed Secretary of the Party Central Committee.

Hungarian Shuffle Ousts Kadar

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 28 (UPI) — Premier Janos Kadar, who took over the Hungarian government after the Soviets crushed the 1956 Freedom Revolt, resigned tonight in a cabinet reshuffle.

Kadar, 53, retained his position as leader of the country's communist party, remaining as First Secretary of the Central Committee.

CHANGES AGREED
An official government announcement said the changes were agreed upon last Friday at a meeting of the Central Committee.

The announcement said Kadar was stepping down "to devote all his time to his duties as First Secretary."

Deputy Premier Gyula Kallai, 53, a former journalist, was named to succeed Kadar as premier.

Like Kadar, the new premier was a leader of the World War II resistance against the Nazis when the Germans occupied Hungary.

CABINET SHUFFLE
Before becoming Deputy Premier in 1960, Kallai was Foreign Minister, Culture Minister and Minister of State.

Station Pares Staff

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver radio station CJOR announced Monday it is laying off 16 of its staff of 41 as part of an extensive economy wave made necessary by drastic losses suffered as a result of a recommendation by the Board of Broadcast Governors.

President Mrs. Marie Chandel said the losses are a direct result of a BBC recommendation that the station's licence be lifted after Oct. 31.

Last April the board recommended against renewing the licence of the station that got into hot water with the board because of an open line program.

It is recommended that the station be allowed to operate until Oct. 31 while "in the interim the minister of transport accepts applications from other persons for a licence."

Pay-Out Scheme Will Sweeten Car Pact Layoffs

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is going to pay up to $75 a week to Canadian auto workers forced on temporary layoffs by plant changes brought about by the new Canada-U.S. auto agreement, Labor Minister MacEachen announced today.

Immediately affected by the plan will be 1,000 Ford of Canada workers at Windsor, Ont., who will be laid off by mid-August for conversion of their plant to step up production.

INCLUDES BENEFITS
The federal plan would include unemployment insurance benefits, $7 a week for single persons and $36 a week for married. These would not be available in addition to the $75 payment.

Mr. MacEachen's statement to the Commons said auto workers eligible for the benefit also would have to be eligible for unemployment insurance, but did not say that the unemployment insurance payment would be included in the $75. However, he made this clear later in remarks outside the house.

REORGANIZATION
Mr. MacEachen said the tariff-cutting auto pact will cause considerable reorganization of Canadian plants with consequent layoff periods.

"These workers should not be asked to bear the entire financial burden of their unemployment," he said.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Oilman William M. Keck left an estate valued at $180,508,586—possibly the largest in California history, a partial inventory filed in superior court Monday disclosed.

Keck, 84, founder of Superior Oil Co., died last Aug. 20. The bulk of his estate was bequeathed in trust to charitable, educational and religious institutions. It included $16,790,320 in cash and shares of stock valued at $150,238,335.

Airlines Agreement Valid for Future

OTTAWA (CP) — The new agreement dividing international air routes between Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines covers both present routes and any expansion of them, Transport Minister Pickersill said Monday.

He told the Commons CPA, for example, will not only have the right to continue existing Montreal-to-Amsterdam service, but also will handle any other routes opened up under the general bilateral agreement between Canada and the Netherlands.

The same will apply to Air

Canada as far as routes to Britain and France are concerned.

Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre), who raised the question, said the minister had misled the house in his original announcement June 1 in suggesting Air Canada will operate all services to west and northwest Europe except for the one CPA route to Amsterdam. It was possible CPA would gain further service to the Netherlands.

The Stage Is Set

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS Minister Campbell has found a generally favorable reception from representatives of the municipalities and unorganized areas of the capital region for his proposals on the functioning of a joint services board. This bids fair for the establishment of such a board possibly before the year is out, which, if it becomes a reality, will certainly enable more to be done for the common benefit of the region than could be accomplished by the components separately.

There are still hazards ahead for the plan, to be sure; not the least of them created by the "opting out" provision of the legislation which would permit parts of the region, by plebiscite, to decline to participate in specific functions of the board.

For a start according to the minister's recommendations Sooke would have no part of the sewerage study which would become part of the board's purview, and this is reasonable because of Sooke's isolation from the metropolitan district. But it is not nearly so reasonable nor fair that both Sooke and Esquimalt would not participate either in the regional parks system. Is it not to be anticipated that the system would extend west as well as north? Would Esquimalt people not use the regional parks paid for by the rest of the community? Of course they would.

This is perhaps only a small and unimportant initial flaw, but it illustrates the possibility of one of the major components or several of the minor ones rendering the whole plan distinctly inequitable and thus unviable.

Fortunately, however, at this point there seems to be no likelihood that such will be the case, the municipal leaders appearing convinced of the value of an instrument that will permit regional services to be handled and regional problems to be met in united fashion but with serious or harmful loss of local autonomy.

The fields of endeavor allotted to the board for a start are limited, consisting of community planning, the sewer study, the regional parks and control of the sale and use of fireworks. But the expectation is that to eliminate the present multiplicity of intermunicipal boards such other joint services as water and public health will in due time be added.

Thus the stage is set for the individual components of the region to work together (and pay together) in a well organized, economical and effective way wherever their interests extend beyond their own boundaries. The voice of parochialism has been and will be raised in opposition, but with leadership of the sort so far in evidence there are grounds for believing that good sense will prevail, and that "opting out" of a fair share of responsibility for the region's well-being will not be a popular notion.

A Time for Patience

THOUGH BRITAIN'S firm refusal to abrogate the present Rhodesian constitution and remove by force the present white minority government of the self-governing colony will hardly satisfy the majority of Afro-Asian Commonwealth nations, it has at least avoided for the time being a situation which could only result in bloodshed.

If Britain had decided to bend to the demands of the colony's neighboring African nationalist governments and take such punitive action the Rhodesian government would undoubtedly have declared its independence, leaving Britain little choice but to mount a full-scale military invasion of the ill-starred country.

This, of course, would result in a war which would be both politically and militarily impracticable for Britain.

To avoid this, Britain has wisely chosen—backed by the more senior and mature Commonwealth governments—to continue to pursue its present course of conversations with the Rhodesian government.

Whether or not these negotiations will eventually prove fruitful cannot by any means be guaranteed at this time. However, if they are to meet with any success at all it will only be brought about by both sides determining to conduct them with patience and understanding with a minimum of outside interference.

Price of Freedom

THE IDEA of compensating persons who have spent time in jail and are subsequently found not guilty of the charge upon which they were arrested is not new. Most authorities agree this is a highly desirable principle.

It has been discussed in the British House of Commons, along with the suggestion that the state should compensate persons who have suffered loss through criminal action.

It was suggested, for example, that a man who had had his watch stolen, and was without insurance, should be paid damages by the state—the inference, apparently, being that the state had not given him adequate protection.

This is perhaps a little too extreme. But the compensating of a man improperly imprisoned is a very different matter. There have been instances of what are known as ex gratia payments to innocent persons who have been incarcerated. But the machinery is unwieldy and complicated, and the payment can be made only by act of Parliament or order-in-council.

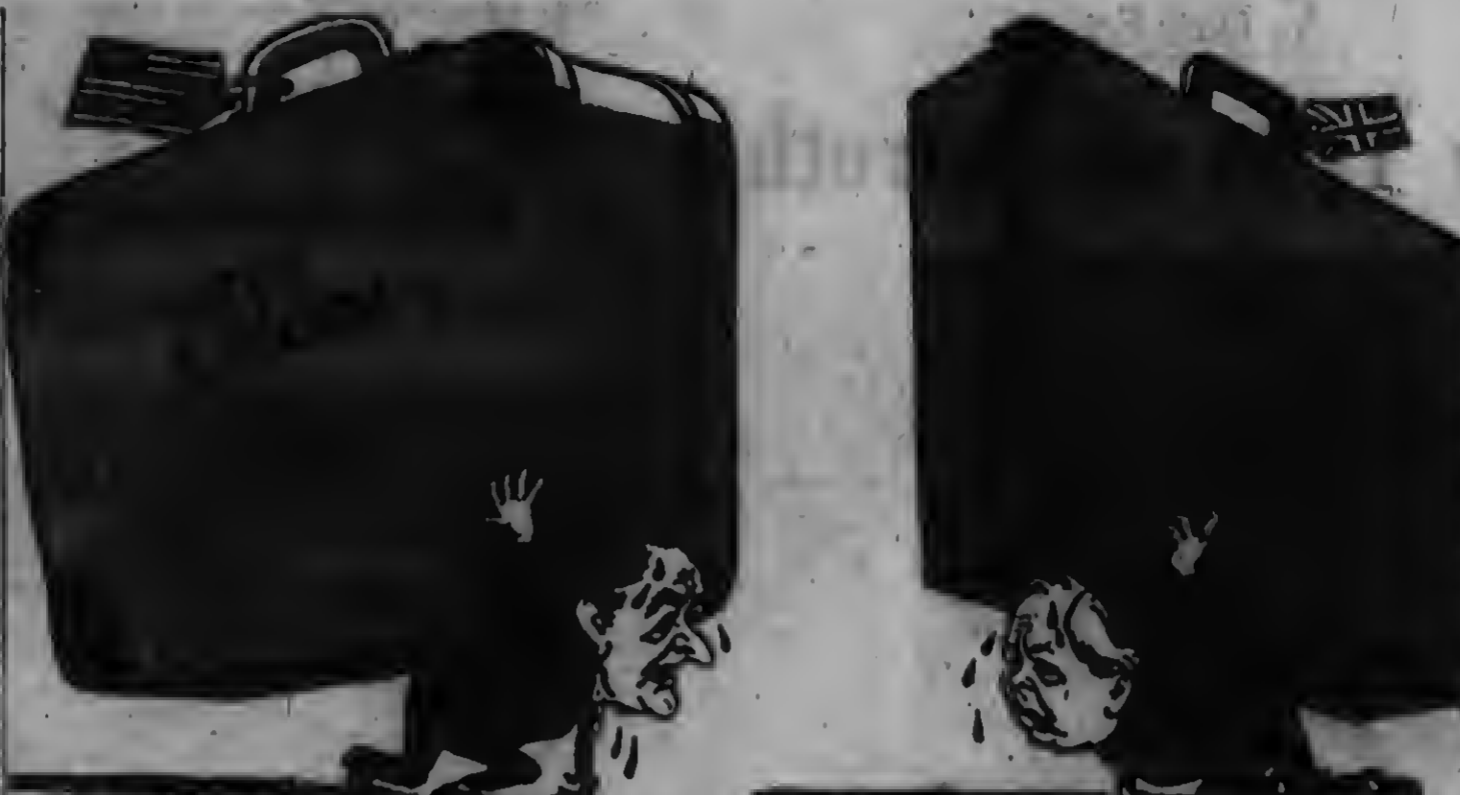

Mr. Jack Roxburgh, MP for Norfolk, a Liberal, proposes to introduce to Canada's Parliament a bill providing for compensation of persons improperly imprisoned. The obvious question arises: How does authority measure the price of a man's freedom?

There are other considerations. Supposing a man is acquitted on any particular charge, and has paid a lawyer to defend him, does he then have a claim against the state for legal fees? Why not? In a civil action the costs are borne by the loser.

MR. DOUGLAS: In the first place one questions South Viet Nam as being a sovereign power. From the very beginning it has been a puppet government supported militarily and financially by the United States, and to say that the United States was invited in by South Viet Nam is like saying that Edgar Bergen was invited to dinner by Charlie McCarthy.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoot, and ship, and sailing was..."

By TOM TAYLOR

ANIMALS, as I once remarked in this space, do not eat unless they are hungry; which is not something that can be said of human beings. That is why there are as many lunch counters.

Now what yours truly knows about tigers is, naturally, practically nothing. I have never sought close acquaintance with this lovely beast. Once, it is true, in the Seattle zoo, only a pane of glass separated me from a superb-looking Bengal tiger, but that was almost too close. It did not seem to be in a particularly polite mood, you see.

Otherwise my awareness of tigers has come only as an observer of circus tricks, occasions that make me wonder which of the two, the trainer or the animal, should have my sympathy. It is different also when animals of this breed, or others, too, are confined to pacing only an allotted few yards in a cage.

Then I confess to be on the latter's side.

In case you haven't seen the Bengal in Seattle, assuming he is still there, I should say perhaps that he has an outside area of his own in which to roam. Unlimited, but still leg-circumscribed.

But how did I get started on this theme, about which, as I have remarked, I personally know nothing?

Just because I was reading about a young German-American zoologist who has been in India studying tigers and their prey. Before that he lived among gorillas for months and wrote two books about these spectacular, as he calls them, creatures.

And he has been destroying some wrongful notions about tigers, such as that they are morose, solitary animals who hunt alone and don't like company except in the mating season.

According to the zoologist they are really quite sociable, meeting at night and sharing the kills. It was in this manner he could note that the father of a family waited until the mother and the cubs had finished before he took a bite.

This isn't quite the custom we, the superior animals, follow. But then I suppose tigers don't spread a table with each member of the family allowed a death share.

Apparently, too, the idea that a tiger once caught its victim without always getting it is rather wide of the mark. It has to work hard for its food, and may try 30 or 40 times before catching its prey. The tiger may be swift, fierce and ruthless, but nature adorns lesser animals with extra-sensory perception as it were, which comes greatly to their aid. Which is fair enough, after all.

The tiger looks so all-powerful—judging by the Beattie specimen I'd back it against the lion—it is appropriate that nature has evened the balance in at least some respects.

Mr. George Schaller, the zoologist in question who probably has a book coming out on the subject, well worth reading I would judge, says the tigers are shy and suspicious but he managed to spend nearly a year observing one, a tigress and four cubs, apparently, not used to him being around.

This would suggest the tiger doesn't leap on a human being the first time he sees one. Although, Mr. Schaller admits, he wasn't exactly treated as a friend.

You may not be the slightest bit interested in tigers. I just found it a change from reading about Viet Nam. That's all.

In Perspective

IN the White House they are drawing up an interesting list of the various stages that have marked the public debate on Viet Nam.

First there was the demand for negotiations. This demand died away when the president went to Baltimore and made his offer of unconditional discussions.

Then there was the campaign for a pause in the bombing. When the president ordered this pause and nothing happened to bring the Communists to the conference table, the agitation became far less vehement.

Now there is a demand for direct negotiations with the Viet Cong. The White House is struck by the progression of these demands. The argument moves from a simple request for negotiations, to a campaign against bombing raids on North Viet Nam, to a demand for a negotiated settlement based on direct talks with the Communist guerrilla forces in South Viet Nam. Always the pressure is on the United States to make the first concessions to the Communists.

In pointing to these facts, White House officials make no criticism of the group of Democratic senators who have become the public opponents of U.S. policies in Viet Nam. The president himself has acknowledged that these senators have both "the right and the duty" to express their convictions on such a major aspect of American policy. Officials in the White House are not opposed to criticism. They are wondering instead whether the critics are sufficiently aware of the uses to which their protests have been put by the Communist side.

Instead of persuading the Communists that the three had come to seek a negotiated settlement, these American criticisms have had the opposite effect. They have hardened the Communist military campaign, led them to hope that the United States may yet become grievously divided, and pushed the Communists further away from the conference room.

Recently President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam was quoted to Pravda as saying that the Communist military effort is receiving encouragement from the criticisms heard inside the United States.

Now the last thought in the mind of any senator is to say or do anything that will bring aid and comfort to the Communists. Not a single critical senator is trying to help the Communist side. Without exception all of them are trying to save the United States from following a path which they conceive to be with Ho Chi Minh's interview with Pravda.

The Price of Negotiation

By MAX FREEDMAN from Washington

Incidentally, far too much has been made of Senator Fulbright's meeting with the president before his recent speech in the Senate. As chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, Senator Fulbright has his own constitutional duties to discharge. His ability to command a national or indeed a world audience does not depend on his being a spokesman for the White House. It depends on his own intrinsic wisdom. Nobody understands this better than the president.

That being clearly understood, it should be added that it is utter nonsense for the Republican party to pretend that Senator

Fulbright is challenging the president's program. President Johnson is pledged to a policy of unconditional discussions. That means he is ready to go to the conference table without preconditions of any kind. He is ready to listen to everything without agreeing to anything in advance.

Quite plainly there can be no settlement, as Senator Fulbright has said, without concessions from both sides. The president has no quarrel at all with that position. He merely reserves the right to decide for himself at the proper time what precise concessions are in fact essential to a settlement. He would like that fact to be thoroughly understood in the United States no less than by the Communists.

SEN. FULBRIGHT'S SPEECH

Defence Fund Gift

NETHERLANDERS have been taken by surprise by the fierce reaction of their former countrymen in South Africa to the Dutch donation of $50,000 to the Defence and Aid Fund which helps to finance the defence of people charged in South Africa with offences against the state.

The Dutch reject the philosophy of apartheid, and this has been known for years. A gift to the Defence and Aid Fund is seen as a logical consequence of this rejection.

It is true that a conservative minority in Holland questions the wisdom of the gift and believes that gestures of this kind could be made on private initiative so that official relations with South Africa would not be jeopardized. But most Dutch people undoubtedly support the government in its gift—indeed, many feel the task lies in the smallness of the amount.

People in Holland regard

What they find harder to understand is the threat to the South African government of retaliatory economic measures against Holland itself. (On June 17 it was announced that talks aimed at extending the Dutch AIAF air service in South Africa had been broken off.)

For although Holland is opposed to apartheid it takes the view that economic sanctions against South Africa on this account would hurt only the people of South Africa, black and white.

According to the Dutch ministry of foreign affairs, the $50,000 gift is the Dutch response to a recent request by the special United Nations committee on apartheid. The UN committee asked all members to give financial help to organizations assisting people in distress because of apartheid. The Dutch considered a number of organizations and eventually its choice fell on the Defence and Aid Fund in London.

Public opinion has no doubt of the reaction if South Africa really intends retaliation. The leading newspapers have been almost unanimous in their editorials: a matter of principle can never be bought with commercial interests.

The Dutch point out that, while the mere act of making a gift shows that there is still belief left in the administration of justice in South Africa—otherwise the gift would be pointless—the violent reaction in South Africa only serves to confirm the belief that it was useful and needed.

Where's Fire?

Recently a city woman died in a fire.

Would it help if all telephone operators were told, as soon as somebody phones in about a fire, to say four words, emphatically, and at once:—

and then pass on the information to the fire department.

Almost certainly a person reporting a fire by phone is highly excited. But the person is likely to give a prompt answer to the clear question, Where is the fire?

If the operator, receiving the fire report, tells the person reporting the fire to wait the reporter is likely to get flustered and even hang up.

The paper reports says that the operator asked for the address and connected the call to the fire department.

The thing to do is to make sure to hold the reporter of the fire on the line by repeating the question, and doing so emphatically.

Stadacona Park

"He who makes a garden works hard to head with God."

Since moving to Belmont Avenue upwards of two years ago, I have had occasion to walk through Stadacona Park in order to meet the bus on Pandora Avenue. The delight of this walk on nearly every fine day is measurably heightened when one enters the park off Begbie Street.

Here indeed is a rare beauty spot of which Victoria citizens may well be proud; and which visitors from other cities may well envy. The spacious playground for children; the skillful blending of trees and shrubbery; the beautifully kept flower beds; the well-trimmed lawns; all these contribute to make it a rare delight to wander through this beauty spot, and render it difficult to resist the temptation to sit awhile and enjoy the surroundings. Moreover, the skillful attention of gardeners and their helpers gives the park the appearance of a well-kept private garden rather than that of a public park. This spring and summer the pansy beds were simply gorgeous, and the variety of colors displayed was amazing, including pure white pansies—something I had never before seen.

I have crossed the continent many times from Halifax to Vancouver, and have visited every city of importance in Canada. But to no other Canadian city have I seen a public park more beautiful or better tended than Stadacona. The city parks department is to be congratulated on providing and caring for this lovely oasis.

Truth is, he has also said, be gave it up for the same reason Senator Wallace McCutcheon gave up big business, high finance and holiday living as the founding proprietor of the fabulous Lyford City Club in Nassau, The Bahamas, simply because he felt, as he has put it, that he "owed something to this country which has done so much for me."

Corny? If you're a cynic, yes. But fact, too.

Against this background of the factual barometer dealer and the fictional barometer boy, how came the deep-seated respect in Parliament, and a disposition to accede almost any cabinet minister but Harry Hays?

Perhaps New Democratic MP Arnold Peters put it best:

"Harry's an auctioneer, and an auctioneer can look after himself in the verbal clinches like nobody else."

"He can tame drunks, skin wise-crackers and scalp smart cunts."

"When you remember that, you get careful with Harry, handling him with kid gloves. For if you start fooling around, he's as liable as not to give you the stump and gavel treatment, and then you'll know who's the man and who's the simple country boy."

And that's just what's happened.

So Harry Hays could come home from Gay Paree in peace and quiet.

Ottawa Offbeat

Fiction And Fact

By RICHARD JACKSON
Columnist Ottawa's Bureau

THAT obedient and expensive Parliament man personality who, with becoming modesty, has billed himself in his own speeches as "just a simple country boy from out Calgary way," the Honourable Harry William Hays, the far out of the ordinary minister of agriculture, has just returned from Gay Paree.

And hardly a word was said by the honourable members of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition who, not so long ago, used to have all kinds of a high old Parliamentary time kidding "Poor Old" Harry as they called him.

Had he returned from Paris in the first few months or even the first year after his eastern migration to the capital, it would have been an occasion for much merriment in a House that as recently could get instantly hilarious over anything having to do with Harry.

Imagine, they would have roared, rolling and rocking with glee, imagine that I'll of country boy on the prowl in Pigeon!

It took the House about a year, and some of the smart-crackers a mile-sliding to find out that Harry Hays wasn't really the innocent barometer boy he sometimes pretended to be.

A few of the western Conservative MPs, John Defenbacher's Alberta Cowboy, as they're called, knew this all along.

The Tory MPs from the foothills of the Rockies knew that Harry Hays, in the real world of business a wheeler dealer millionaire, was "only tamin'" when he made out in the make-believe world of Parliament that he was a hayseed.

They recalled him in his pre-parliamentary days as leaving the affluent, almost, down-ramp pleasant life of a North American's leading and most financially successful auctioneer of purebred cattle.

His base of operations was a 40-acre estate-type home once located on the outskirts of Calgary, but in more recent years entirely surrounded by its mushrooming suburbs, and now worth a king's ransom in real estate value.

As a money-making hobby, he ran a 1,500-acre, 18-square-mile ranch in the "Prime of Wales" country southwest of the EP Ranch at High River.

From these two establishments he would venture, perhaps once a week or even less, on an unending expedition, to put to rest more than four or five highly productive working hours with stamp and gavel.

He always took Mrs. Hays with him, and they travelled really first class, occupying an ultra-comfortable suite in the best hotel of whatever city he was working, and as he regarded it, holidaying.

The auction done, the cattle sold at blue ribbon prices, he would hire a limousine-type car and spend two or three days touring the country side and neighbouring cities.

And it got him this sophisticated way of life, a rather satisfactory comfortable annual $20,000.

Every spring Harry and his wife vacationed in Hawaii.

So why did he give it all up for Ottawa?

"I sometimes still ask myself that," he has answered on occasion that every question so many others ask.

Truth is, he has also said, be gave it up for the same reason Senator Wallace McCutcheon gave up big business, high finance and holiday living as the founding proprietor of the fabulous Lyford City Club in Nassau, The Bahamas, simply because he felt, as he has put it, that he "owed something to this country which has done so much for me."

Corny? If you're a cynic, yes. But fact, too.

Against this background of the factual barometer dealer and the fictional barometer boy, how came the deep-seated respect in Parliament, and a disposition to accede almost any cabinet minister but Harry Hays?

Perhaps New Democratic MP Arnold Peters put it best:

"Harry's an auctioneer, and an auctioneer can look after himself in the verbal clinches like nobody else."

"He can tame drunks, skin wise-crackers and scalp smart cunts."

"When you remember that, you get careful with Harry, handling him with kid gloves. For if you start fooling around, he's as liable as not to give you the stump and gavel treatment, and then you'll know who's the man and who's the simple country boy."

And that's just what's happened.

So Harry Hays could come home from Gay Paree in peace and quiet.

Trial by Judge Elected In Navy Film Case

Two Victoria men chose trial by judge without jury when they appeared on remand Monday in Esquimalt magistrate's court on charges concerned with navy photographic materials.

Lieut. Eric Haywood, 2150 Alberby, and Charles Whyte, 8034 East Saanich, face four charges of fraud and one of theft over $50.

They were remanded until July 13, date fixed for the start of the preliminary hearing.

REJECTED
A defence bid to have the fraud charges quashed was rejected by Magistrate William Oatler.

Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, Haywood's counsel, had argued that the charges were vaguely worded and the defendants were therefore unable to define precisely the accusations against them.

The two men are charged with obtaining a photo enlarger and two cameras from Victoria Photo Supply, using naval funds, and obtaining $43.35 worth of "fictitious camera repairs" from the photo shop.

PHOTOGRAPHIC PAPER
The incidents are said to have occurred between Aug. 1, 1963, and Oct. 13, 1964.

In addition, they are charged with obtaining photographic paper worth more than $50 from naval stores between March 7 and March 9, 1963.

Lieut. Haywood is former head of the Naden photographic department. Whyte, a civilian employee, was in charge of stores. Both were transferred to other departments in Naden when an RCMP investigation into the alleged incidents began last fall. W. E. Whyte is defence counsel for Whyte.

In city court, a man was bound over to keep the peace for six months after conviction of assaulting a fellow rooming house lodger.

Thomas James Avery, 714 Discovery, had pleaded not guilty.

The incident was said to have occurred on the evening of June 10, when Albert Cole, same address, went up to Avery's room to complain about the noise from Avery's television set.

Avery was abusive and hit him in the chest, Cole testified. "I didn't lay a hand on him," countered Avery, "because he wouldn't be here now, I can assure you."

He said Cole was an atheist, and that was "the real cause of the trouble."

Magistrate Oatler noted that Cole was very hard of hearing and it was therefore odd that he should have been bothered by the noisy TV set. Nor had any third party witnessed the alleged blow.

But the threat to use force could also constitute assault, the magistrate said, and he was satisfied that this had occurred.

A group of 45 Nanaimo Rotarians will visit Pacific Command of the Royal Canadian Navy Wednesday.

After an official welcome at 11 a.m. by Capt. Fred Frewer, chief of staff to the Flag Officer Pacific Coast, visitors will lunch with sailors of the command at noon.

Solution 'On Way', But Sewage Row Still Adds Fuel

A public hearing was requested Monday into a provincial government application to dump 20,000 gallons of treated sewage daily into Colquitz Creek.

A letter from Mrs. B. Levin Packford, president of the Capital region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, said the group wished "... to express their opposition to the application" of the provincial public works department for permission to dump the sewage.

HOSPITAL OUTFALL

The sewage involved in the estimated outfall of a proposed hospital for mentally retarded children.

The letter, addressed to pollution control board executive engineer C. J. Keenan, also says, "... We trust that a public hearing on a matter which has excited a great deal of public concern can be arranged before a decision is made."

SOLUTION EXPECTED

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said last Friday his department and Saanich officials, in whose municipality the proposed hospital was to be built, were expecting to solve the problem.

He also said his department, the government and Saanich expect "in two or three weeks" to have worked out an inexpensive sewage disposal plan which will not affect the Gorge waters.

He also implied the hospital site will not be changed through the proposed solution.

Speedy Diplomat Clocks at 83

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI)—It was done with proper diplomacy and it left no doubt New Jersey state police mean business in their war against speeding diplomatic vehicles on the New Jersey turnpike.

Troops, Sunday, escorted the chauffeur-driven limousine of the Senegalese ambassador to the United States from the multi-lane toll road between New York and Washington. They said radar clocked the shiny, high-powered vehicle at 83 mph in a 60-mph zone.

Veterans of 48th Battalion Recall War to End Wars

By AL ARNABON

After half a century the head gets greyer and the step slower, but memories of war lose little of their splendour—or their horror.

For more than 80 veterans of the 48th Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force of the First World War, Saturday was like the old days again.

They swapped tales and reminiscences of battles for a few hours to mark the 50th anniversary of the battalion's formation.

At the Holyrood House head table sat their favorite soldier, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, whose meteoric rise to major-general from trooper never changed his easy friendliness.

Once they were 1,154 officers and men of the 88th Victoria Fusiliers, the 50th Gordon Highlanders, the 102nd

Rocky Mountain Rangers and the 68th Earl Grey's Own Rifles of Prince Rupert.

Now they are 80 elderly men with still-vivid memories of the "war to end wars."

Coquitlam Land Deal

Cabinet Reinstates Municipal Employees

The cabinet Monday lifted suspensions on two Coquitlam municipal employees cleared of alleged wrongdoing in a land deal.

An order-in-council reinstated municipal assessor William James Joyce and municipal clerk Francis Leland Pobst without loss of pay or other benefits.

The cabinet also revoked an order reprimanding building inspector Theo Francis Walman.

The cabinet decision said the report of Commissioner Gilmour Clark indicated that only technical errors had been committed, and no pecuniary gain was involved.

Mr. Clark held a public inquiry last March and April into the conduct of the Coquitlam assessor and other municipal officials.

As the result of the inquiry, the commissioner ordered Mr. Joyce and Mr. Pobst suspended from their duties and Mr. Walman reprimanded.

The municipal affairs department launched the inquiry after receiving complaints that the carport of the municipal assessor's home extended onto municipal land and that it was proposed to sell this municipal land to Mr. Joyce without first putting it to public tender.

Viet Cong Down Transport Plane

SAIGON (CP) — Witnesses said Monday at least 16 persons were killed in the crash of a C-123 transport hit by Viet Cong guerrilla fire 13 miles east of this South Vietnamese capital. U.S. spokesmen were reticent, but confirmed a U.S. Air Force officer and another American were dead.

The twin-engine plane plowed into a farmhouse Sunday night. Nationality of the other victims and such details as the total number of casualties were veiled by official secrecy.

In Washington, the Pentagon said it had no information on the case.

FOUR BODIES MISSING

However, South Vietnamese and American military men and civilians who visited the scene at daylight said they saw 16 bodies taken from the wreckage. One military source reported he understood there had been 20 Americans aboard. He said his information was that all were killed and four bodies were missing in the widely-scattered debris.

Aground and in the air, the war went on Monday.

Tourists Become Straphangers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of World's Fair and other visitors, deprived of the city's 12,000 taxicabs by a strike, braved the subway rush and button-holed pedestrians Monday to get to their destinations.

The strike was marked by sporadic violence and vandalism.

Visitors became honorary straphangers on the subway as most of the cabs were absent from the streets for the second time in three months because of a drivers' strike aimed at union recognition by the taxi fleet owners.

ONE STABBED

Cab riders, caught between the union pressure and the cab owners' refusal to bow, were forced into buses or subway or had to walk.

No negotiations were slated. Four men stopped fleet cabbie Juan Martinez in the Bronx, dragged him out of his cab and stabbed him in the abdomen and the arm. He was removed to a hospital in fair condition.

Owner-driver Kalman Wechsler, 41, was hauled out of his cab in Brooklyn and punched by three men who had forced his vehicle to the curb.

Even before the strike started after a mass meeting that began at midnight, owners complained that vandals broke the windows and slashed the tires of more than 50 taxis.

CHICAGO (AP) — Thousands of Chicagoans who regularly take taxi-cabs to work were the first to feel the full impact of the city's cab strike Monday, the first business day since the strike began at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

About 6,000 drivers and mechanics of the Yellow Cab Company and the Checker Taxi Company, who make about 85 per cent of Chicago's licensed cabs, went on strike when their union and the companies failed to agree on written terms of a new contract.

Bleeders Given Improved Chance

OTTAWA (CP) — Although a cure is unlikely, life for the hemophiliac is getting better all the time, a Montreal expert in the blood disease said Monday.

"Children with hemophilia should be able to take their place in the world like anybody else," Dr. Albert Royer, professor of pediatrics at the University of Montreal, said in an interview.

Dr. Royer delivered a paper on the bleeding disease at the annual meeting of the Canadian Pediatric Society. About 2,000 Canadians suffer from the disease, which involves a deficiency of the clotting agent in the blood.

Twenty years ago, Dr. Royer said, a great many children died from the disease or were crippled by it.

Development of fresh, frozen blood plasma more than a decade ago was a big step towards a normal life for the hemophiliac. The clotting agent needed to stop bleeding can be kept for long periods as part of the plasma.

With the plasma, Dr. Royer said doctors can stop bleeding even from serious cuts.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Italian officials arranged Monday to sign a $100,000,000 loan from the World Bank aimed at spurring industrial development in southern Italy.

The loan is for 15 years at 8½ per cent annual interest. Repayment begins July 1, 1969.

Help For Latins

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada has agreed to provide another $15 million to assist development in Latin America.

The money will be made available through an agreement reached by the Inter-American Development Bank and the Export Credits Insurance Corporation.

Under this, the Canadian government will provide up to $15 million to finance sales of Canadian capital goods and related services to Latin America.

The money is in addition to the $10 million in development loans Canada agreed last December to provide through the bank for technical, economic and educational assistance to the Latin American countries.

'Vancouver' Added Every Eight Years

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia is adding enough people every eight years to populate a city the size of Vancouver, Attorney-General Bonner said Monday.

Mr. Bonner told the Canadian Association of Building Owners and Managers convention here that the province is gaining 50,000 new citizens a year, or 400,000 every eight years.

He said the present population of Vancouver is 400,000.

The attorney-general predicted by 1975 the population of the lower mainland area—Greater Vancouver and the Lower Fraser Valley—will exceed the present provincial population of 1,800,000.

"This is an enormous piece of real estate," said Mr. Bonner. "People around the world are looking for places like this to settle and for business development."

He said capital investment this year is expected to total $1,850,000,000.

A second speaker at the opening of the four-day convention, W. C. Mainwaring, chairman of United Kingdom Properties Ltd., said North America has a fear complex that is completely unfounded.

Mr. Mainwaring said North Americans are afraid of war, automation and unsettled conditions in world business.

"We have many problems, but I am convinced that the people of Canada and the U.S. have the means of solving all of them," he said.

He said fear is needless because the two nations are the richest in the world and are prepared to share their wealth with less prosperous countries.

Province Bombs Highways

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. is bombing highways with seeds in a beautification program, Highways Minister Phil Gagliardi said today.

Seeds are sprayed from helicopters along the roadside, Gagliardi told the Western Canada Roadside Development Conference at the University of B.C.

"We in this department go around disrupting the beautiful countryside," he said. "We should try to put some of it back."

He said the highways department is currently carrying out an experimental program of seeding.

Mr. Mainwaring said North Americans are afraid of war, automation and unsettled conditions in world business.

"We have many problems, but I am convinced that the people of Canada and the U.S. have the means of solving all of them," he said.

Nurse Tells of Tortures Inflicted on Congo Priests

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — Congo rebels last month beat and hacked a group of Belgian and Dutch missionaries to death and then made other European survivors hold a leg of one of the priests, a British nurse told a press conference Monday.

The nurse was one of 19 Europeans rescued Saturday from an insurgent band at Buta, in the far north of the Congo, after 11 months of captivity.

The rescued Europeans are 15 Roman Catholic nuns, the British missionary nurse, Margaret Hayes, and a Belgian mother and her two young daughters aged two and four.

GOOD CONDITION

The 19 arrived in this Congolese capital by air Sunday night—none apparently in bad physical condition.

Miss Hayes, 40, was the only European to escape in December from the town of Banalia, 60 miles north of Stanleyville, where 15 Europeans were killed by rebels in November.

After hiding in the surrounding bush for a month Miss Hayes was recaptured and taken to Buta, where the 31 Roman Catholic priests — 16 Dutch and 15 Belgian — were killed.

HERDED INTO ROOM

Miss Hayes said she was herded into a room with the priests, the 15 nuns, the Belgian woman, Mrs. Nadine Legros, and her two small daughters. Late at night on May 29

Royal Charm Triumphs

Five Busy, Happy Days End for Queen Mother

By JOHN LEBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth flew back to England Sunday night after five days of spreading the noted royal charm around Toronto.

Her parting words were that she "enjoyed every minute of it."

PRESENTED COLORS

Much of her visit was devoted to the killed Scottish, to whom she has been colonel-in-chief since 1937 and to whom she presented their old colors in 1939 when she visited here as the Queen with King George VI.

On Thursday night, she attended a dinner in honor of the regiment and—in an off-the-cuff interjection in a set speech—told the guests she had been in love with Canada since the young royal couple of 1939 took Canadian hearts by storm.

AIRPORT CROWD

After a bustling day—two church services, a couple of sessions with her Toronto Scottish Regiment and a visit to city hall

—she left fresh and bouncy and with smiles and waves for some 3,000 onlookers at Toronto International Airport.

Her departure on the RCAF's heavy Yukon aircraft brought an end to a series of appearances that brought her into touch with many facets of Toronto life since her arrival Wednesday night to help the Toronto Scottish—of which she is colonel-in-chief—celebrate its 50th anniversary.

Besides presenting the regiment with new colors and seeing to it that the old ones were laid up with ceremony, she was banqueted, visited hospitals, a museum, the legislature, a stadium—she's been on the horses —called on her old friend, former governor-general Vincent Massey, and was on display for mile after mile of citizenry.

Informality hit a new high after the Queen Mother took the salute as the regiment broke ranks and civilians scurried around among the troops while she walked among them.

Eventually, the soldiers formed a ring and she circled about inside it, chatting with many of the kilties.

When it came time to leave Sunday night, she told Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe, last to talk with her before she entered the plane, that she had thoroughly enjoyed the trip and felt better than when she

Biggest Hydrofoil Launched at Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—What is believed to be the world's largest hydrofoil vessel was launched here Monday.

The 212-foot, 300-ton, $12,000,000 Pinnacle was built as an experimental vessel for the United States Navy.

It will be tested on the high seas in experiments designed to see if more speed can be built into surface ships.

CLASSIFIED

It will be powered by two 15,000-horsepower gas turbine engines while foiling and is expected to "take off" on its fully submerged foils at about 35 knots. Its expected speed is classified information.

The foils can be retracted for hullborne operation, powered by two diesel engines.

There are three foils shaped like airplane wings. Two are opposite each other about the middle of the hull. The third is at the stern. Raising or lowering the leading edge of the foils causes the ship to rise from the water or lower to the surface.

TESTS IN SOUND

Lockheed Shipbuilding and Construction Company says the vessel "will be used to evaluate the use of hydrofoil ships of this size in anti-submarine missions and other roles."

The vessel is still to be fitted out and will undergo sea trials in the Puget Sound area late this fall. It is to be delivered to the navy at the end of the year.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy
Contains a Unique Healing Substance
That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "itching piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions—even cases of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

So now you can treat your Canadian friends to that English beer you've been telling them about.

Toby's a typical English beer, made with real English hops, toasted barley-malt, and patience.

So it has more bite and less gas than Canadian beers. And a deep-amber colour.

Since it's English beer, remember, you should serve it at English pub temperature. Not warm, heaven forbid.

Just nicely cool.

Steel Job Next

The next stage of the provincial centennial museum and archives will be fabrication of more than 2,000 tons of structural steel.

Tenders for the job have been advertised and will be opened July 5. Delivery date for the steel is Nov. 30.

ON SCHEDULE

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the public works department said Monday that the giant excavation project on the museum site at Government and Belleville is proceeding on schedule.

Tenders for the foundation contract will be advertised July 15 and officials hope pile-drivers will be at work by the end of next month.

The main structural contract will go out Jan. 15, 1966, with a start on construction proper by March 1 of next year. Tentative completion date for the $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 structure is Oct. 1, 1967.

Boating Tragedy

Crews Look For Bodies

DRYDEN, Ont. (CP)—Dredging crews searched on in fog and rain Monday for bodies of eight of the 12 victims of a boating mishap near this northwestern Ontario pulp and paper town.

Fourteen people — eight of them children — were in the cabin of a homemade houseboat on Lake Wabigoon Sunday when a rain storm struck with winds up to 75 miles an hour.

The roof was ripped off and the boat flipped over, its oil drum pontoons turned above the water. Two people got out of the cabin and rode the pontoons to shore and safety in 12-foot waves.

The victims: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Graham of Wabigoon and their seven children, aged three to 13; Mrs. Harry Finlayson, Wabigoon, her daughter, Betty Huckell, Wabigoon; Mrs. Huckell's two-year-old child.

OWNERS SURVIVE

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Lobreau of Dryden, the boat owners, survived. Both were taken to hospital. Mr. Lobreau was released Monday. His wife, Shirley, remained. She was under sedation and complaining of a sore back.

The bodies of Mrs. Huckell and two small girls, not identified, and a man were recovered. Mr. Lobreau said in an interview Monday after trying to steer his craft into the wind, it tipped. He grabbed his wife — a non-swimmer — and pushed her out of the cabin.

"It just happened so quickly I don't remember anyone saying anything."

He said he got his wife between two rows of oil drums that supported the houseboat and they rode to shore. They were in the lake for about an hour.

HIGH WAVES

"And the waves, 12 feet high, were coming over us."

"Then we walked about a mile and a half through bush and the storm blew trees down around us. All I had on was my bathing suit. Shirley had slacks and a blouse."

Both stumbled, blood-covered, from the bush into Bonny Bay Camp.

Police said the people on the boat—all related—were fishing on an island when the storm hit.

Dryden Paper Company salvaged the houseboat Monday. It was floating upside down.

Dairy Program Useless for B.C.

Ye Olde Stoolball Given Trophy

Stoolball will become a regular school sport, if Westernham School has anything to say about it.

The school is contributing a perpetual trophy to the winners of league games in the Victoria area.

So far, the league numbers only three schools—St. Margaret's, Norfolk House and Westernham—but the schools hope the sport will spread to other schools in the district, and eventually, throughout Vancouver Island.

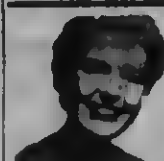

ST. MARGARET'S TOPS

St. Margaret's topped the other two schools in the first district games played earlier this month.

R. E. Avery of Victoria brought the sport here from its Southern England home, where it began in 1350.

Mr. Avery also contributed "pioneer trophies" to the first and second-place teams in local games, St. Margaret's and Norfolk House.

Games have paused for the school holidays, but are expected to continue next year.

Now! False Teeth Fit Beautifully!

Amazing dental discovery. 'Cushion Grip'—adds zero spots—refits loose dentures in half hour as a dentist's mold! Tasteless! Nothing to mix! One application lasts months!

After years of research, modern science has developed a remarkable new way to make false teeth fit beautifully—stop loosening, slipping, clicking, relieve sore spots—without messy, old-fashioned pastes, powders and pack! It's CUSHION GRIP—sealing new soft, flexible plastic that holds false teeth snug as a dentist's mold, through seeping suction—makes loose dentures fit properly again. Result is, you can talk, laugh, eat anything without discomfort or embarrassment.

Some dentures, then insert tubes forth into mouth and bite down. Instantly, CUSHION GRIP seals to contours of mouth and gums—provides beautiful fit—holds dentures firmly in place with suction. Loosening, slipping, clicking disappear. Sore spots are quickly relieved. One application lasts for months, despite nightly cleaning. Yet CUSHION GRIP is easily removed when desired. What's more, CUSHION GRIP actually refits, relieves worn dentures. Save 73¢...For generous trial offer send 25¢ your name and address to PHARMACO 3535 Metropoulos Blvd., P.O. Village Fund Adds $770

Tag Day Saturday on Lower Vancouver Island raised $770 for the Children's International Summer Village to be held this summer at Shawnigan Lake.

This, combined with gifts from island communities and individuals, raised the total to more than $6,000, still some distance away from the required $8,000.

Cowichan municipal council donated $100, while Sidney Village Commission gave $30. Ucluelet $25 and Zebellon $5. Earlier, the Vancouver Island division of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities had suggested to island municipalities they give the village $15 per 1,000 people.

Sgt. Bricker Wins Feature

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sgt. Bricker, given a good ride by jockey Jim Dailey, got home in front again at Exhibition Park Monday to win the featured seventh race for three-year-olds and up.

Getting into position early, Sgt. Bricker, owned by Small Oaks Stables of Victoria, moved up on the outside in the stretch to win by three-quarters of a length over Veteran Observer. Sapot was third.

It was Sgt. Bricker's fourth

Norm Boden Takes West Coast Tourney

PORT ALBERNI — Mount Benson club member Norman Borden had a 27-hole score of 105 to capture the West Coast open golf tournament here Sunday. Runner-up was Bert Hogarth of Nanaimo.

Port Alberni's Harry Stinzaker was the low-net award with 194, followed by Colin McPherson, also of Port Alberni.

Owen Ellis of Comox, Mike Koib, Cowichan, and Jim Marasco, Port Alberni, placed third, fourth and fifth in the low gross 27-hole competition.

Winner

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Ramon Floyd, 22-year-old pro from St. Paul, Ill., won the $100,000 St. Andrew's golf tournament Sunday, finishing four strokes ahead of Tommy Aaron and Gene Littler to get the $20,000 first-place cheque.

Floyd came in with a two-under-par 69 in Sunday's final round for a 72-hole total of 271 1/2 under par.

The blustery winds, gusting 30 miles an hour, on the par 34-35-71, 7,700-yard Kell course, didn't seem to bother him as Floyd did others who slipped to a one-over 72 Sunday, while Littler came at a one-under 70 to deaden at 74. Each won $9,750.

'The Barber' Trims United

VANCOUVER—His teammates call Louis Trischuk "The Barber" because he's got a tongue like a razor and uses it to put his club up for big matches.

But Trischuk pushes no one harder than himself, and it was he who led Vancouver Flenno to a 2-0 victory over Victoria

Minnesota Twins dropped out of first place in the American League for the first time since May 20 last night. Or, to put it more accurately, they were shelved out.

The pressures that have been building through the last two weeks of a tight race erupted in Minneapolis last night, where Chicago White Sox stoned the Twins, 7-4.

While the carnage was ended, the Twins were not only out of first place, they were dropped to third, Cleveland Indians, who have come up winners 35 times in their last 17 games, tied the Sox for the lead with a 2-2 romp past Boston Red Sox.

All three clubs had won doubleheaders Sunday, Minnesota beating Detroit, 6-4 and 6-3, Chicago taking Baltimore

Gloomsville For Rocks

For Victoria Shamrocks, the second half of the Inter-City Lacrosse League schedule is starting out much the same as the first.

All the news is bad.

After trying to come up with a lineup to face New Westminster here Wednesday night, coach Jim McNeill got the following reports:

- Reg Foster's ankle injury will probably keep him out at least one more game.
- Jack Showers, the defenceman Shamrocks need so desperately, will be absent for two weeks. He has a pinched nerve.
- Bill Munroe, who fractured a toe in practice but played Saturday in Coquitlam, is hobbling badly. He's a doubt.
- And finally, junior star Ranjit Dillon, who would normally be called up as a replacement, was hurt in Sunday's game and may not be ready in time.

Shamrocks trail third-place Coquitlam by two points, and must finish third to make the playoffs.

BONLA BRIEFS: Vancouver also has injury problems with both Pete Black (broken ankle) and Bill Chisholm (shoulder separation) probably through for the season... Coquitlam is approaching both Scott Blomdahl and former all-star Tom Mevis, trying to get one or both to sign up in time for playoffs. They need play only three games to be eligible.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Twenty-year-old Wayne Vollmer struck another blow of the younger school of golf when he came from behind to win the B.C. amateur championship on Saturday.

In disposing of a field that included most of the province's leading amateurs, Vollmer rightly crushed his way into the B.C. Willingdon Cup team in just the same way as Victoria's Bill Watson did four years ago.

The new champion and Willingdon Cupper has proved himself a young man who is not only a good golfer but an extremely good competitor.

He sank the vital putt on Saturday at Point Grey against his redoubtable opponent John Russell, and his 36th hole victory was not unlike the one he won at Royal Colwood two years ago when he shipped dead at the last hole against Neil Pembrey and got the half that brought him a one-up victory.

While Vollmer should strengthen the Willingdon Cup team, it is a little disappointing that the selectors did not go a step further and introduce some more young blood, if not to win the event this year at least to build up a team that will do the trick in the near future.

Such, of course, would involve a change of BCCA policy for Willingdon Cup selection is to go along with those players who have the best current performance.

On those grounds John Johnston, John Russell and Bert Tiethurst earned their places—although the last named must have got in by the skin of his teeth. All three, however, were in last year's team which finished a poor fourth at Saskatoon.

Of those knocking at the door Terry Campbell came nearest to winning selectors' approval. He is one of the two alternates.

Terry, like Wayne Vollmer, is a former Canadian junior champion, and at Point Grey last week he reached the semi-final before bowing out to Russell.

The other alternate, Frank Head, is comparatively unknown outside of Vancouver club circles. A long-hitting 30-year-old from Marine Drive, he has recorded good scores in this year's medal events in the Malahat city.

Ricky Kent lost his chance of making it this year because he failed to steer clear of trouble in the four qualifying rounds and had a number of bad holes in among a lot of pretty good golf, but the Victoria champion and Jim Seed, last year's Canadian junior champion, are probably among those in which B.C.'s future hopes of regaining Willingdon Cup supremacy will eventually lie.

This year's Willingdon Cup and Canadian Amateur championship will be played at the Pine Ridge club in Whistler on Aug. 9-14 following the Americas Cup games on the neighboring St. Charles Country Club on Aug. 6-7.

In the latter event, two B.C. golfers, Johnston and Tiethurst are members of the Canadian team.

The Uplands Golf Club will be handed over the Willie Park Drive and the prizes that go along with winning of the Inter-Club League at a function at the Gorge Vale Golf Club Wednesday.

It is Uplands' third win in succession in this popular event, and it gives them a lead over all their opponents as the most frequent winners. Gorge Vale has held it twice, and Victoria and Royal Colwood once each.

The "prophetic" club which goes to the club finishing at the foot will this year be presented to Gorge Vale, a club which hitherto has never finished out of the first two.

The junior inter-city match between Victoria and Vancouver has been postponed again.

The Vancouver team will not be selected until after the B.C. junior championship at Marine Drive, July 8-7.

Las Milas, B.C. junior development chairman says that new dates in July are under consideration. The Victoria home game will be played at Royal Colwood.

Mike Morgan and Claire Mitchell retained the city senior honors by beating Jack Brown and Ray Spence, all of Gorge Vale, at the 12th hole at Gorge Vale. Next opponents at Uplands are Bill Kane and Jim Douglas of Uplands.

Seattle Sailors Win Yacht Race

The Corinthian Yacht Club crew, skippered by Maurice Ratray, of Seattle, edged out Jack Woodward's Royal Victoria Yacht Club crew to take the Malloy Cup regional title in races Saturday and Sunday.

Ratray will represent the Pacific region in the Malloy Cup finals, to be held in New Orleans in August.

The races Saturday and Sunday off Oak Bay turned out to be a duel between the Seattle yachtsmen and Woodward.

When points were tallied Sunday, both men had 30½, and the judges had to go back to the record of race wins to find the victor.

The title went to Ratray, who had two first places, two seconds, and a third.

Woodward had two firsts, two seconds, and a fourth.

Saturday it was Mr. Ratray all the way. In both races he took first, and Woodward took second, fighting 40 mile an hour winds.

Sunday, Victoria bounced back, taking first place in the first two races, closely followed in both races by Ratray in second.

Good winds aided all yachtsmen.

But by the third race, the winds had died down, and the Victoria team drew a boat with a "dirty" bottom.

With a good wind, yacht club officials said Monday, but the combination of a dirty bottom, and a light wind dragged the Victoria boat to fourth place.

It was a bad race for Ratray too. The former American Olympic team yachtsman fell to third place.

Final standings were: Ratray, first; Woodward, second; the Tim Meakin team from Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, third; Bob Irie, Seattle Yacht Club, fourth, and Tom Beekham, Portland, fifth.

Kamloops Golfer Leads Comeback

Barbara Renuick

Marlyn Palmer of Kamloops led the way with a four-over par 70 Sunday as 15 women toured the Uplands Golf Club in Round 3 of the Canadian Ladies Golf Union provincial team trials.

After Saturday's battle through the winds at Gorge Vale, when scores soared so high they almost certainly won't count, Sunday's round was a welcome relief.

Donna Collett shot an 89 and Barbara Renuick an 81. Margaret Todd, only Victoria golfer in the group, had an 84.

Two more rounds will be played July 3 and 5 in Vancouver. Golfers then threw out their worst round. The four with the best gross scores for four rounds.

Portland Polo Club Shaded

A representative team from the Vancouver Island Polo and Riding Club defeated the visiting Portland Polo Club, 10-4, to win the C. C. Wallace trophy Sunday in the first game of double-header polo action at the Vancouver Island Polo Club grounds on Island View Road.

In the second game, Lancers downed Camlaur, 3-2.

Next Sunday will see the Portland Polo Club go against Victoria for the final match of the series, the City of Victoria Cup match. Scheduled to present the trophy is Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearles.

Snell, Grelle Beaten

SAN DIEGO (CP) — Gerry Lindgren, running away from a jurisdictional dispute between the two major governing bodies of United States track and field, ran so fast Sunday night that he claimed a share of a world record.

And 15-year-old Jim Ryan, too young to be involved in the official crossfire, caught Peter Snell and Jim Grelle trying to outmanoeuvre each other and whipped past them in the fast mile ever run by an American citizen.

Neither won his race—Farrell was third behind U.S. Olympian Morgan Gredes—but the diminutive Lindgren pushed Billy Mills to the wire in a spine-tingling six-mile race in which both were timed in 27:11.6. The former world mark of 27:47.5 was set in 1963 by Ron Clark of Australia.

The electronic timer separated Lindgren and Mills, the Olympic 10,000-meter titleholder, by one-hundredth of a second but AAU officials said they will be certified as co-holders of the record.

The mile loomed as a rematch between Snell, the former world record-holder, and Grelle, who won decisively at Vancouver June 4 when the New Zealander was weakened by a stomach ailment and finished dead last.

But while the two favorites jockeyed for position, Ryan charged into a stable lead on the final lap. Grelle was the first to charge after the Kansas schoolboy but Snell's late kick separated the two American runners. The times were 3:58.3 for Ryan, 3:58.4 for Snell and 3:58.5 for Grelle.

Hume After NHL Franchise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fred Hume, owner of the Vancouver Canucks hockey club, said Monday his organization will make formal application for membership in the National Hockey League "sometime this week."

Hume said his Western Hockey League club is prepared to meet every stipulation set at the recent NHL governors' meeting in New York City, which includes having a 12,500-seat arena for each expanded-franchise club.

The Canucks use the Forum, owned by the Pacific National Exhibition, which seats 5,000. Joining the NHL in time for the 1987-88 season would mean expansion of existing facilities or construction of a new arena.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet soccer team defeated Denmark 6-0 Sunday in a World Cup series match.

Big Local Delegation In Canadian Swims

Fourteen Victoria swimmers, including last year's national championship finalists Monte Holding and Grant Treloar, will compete in this year's Canadian swimming and diving championships July 24-27 in Red Deer, Alberta.

Holding, 20, a third-year student at the University of Oregon studying on a swimming scholarship, finished in the finals of 200 and 400 metre individual medleys and the 1500 metre freestyle in the meet last year held at Vancouver's Empire Pool.

Grant Treloar, 15, swimming in the 15-14 year age division, was a finalist in freestyle, back and breast stroke events last year.

Lorrie Ouby, 12, and Marilyn Horne, 14, also finalists in age group division, will compete again this year.

Each age group competitor in the national championships must be one of the three best in his province. The standing of the B.C. competitors was decided by the B.C. Amateur Swimming Association by comparing the times of competitors in the two most recent meets before the championships. The B.C. championships last April and the Hollyburn Country Club Invitational meet were the key contests this year.

In addition to competing for national titles, athletes will be vying for spots on a 20-man Canadian team to tour Europe with a step-over at the British championships. The team, consisting of senior division swimmers only, will be picked the last day of the meet.

Adult Education

'Hunger' Filling Classes

By BILL STAVDAL
New subjects and a public hunger for knowledge will boost enrolment in the fall's adult education program beyond 7,000, predicts John H. Dalgleish, director of the system.

The 1965-66 curriculum has been established in preparation for printing and distribution in mid-August. Courses from data processing to Victoria's prehistory have been added, said Dr. Dalgleish yesterday.

Enrolment has increased from 1,700 in 1955 to 6,700 last winter. Mr. Dalgleish foresees no decline.

NEW COURSES
Among the new courses this winter:

- A full-time commercial program, giving concentrated job training six hours daily;
- New mathematics at the senior secondary level;
- The archaeology and anthropology and prehistoric Victoria;
- Management accounting;
- An introduction to data processing, taught by members of the provincial government's data-processing division.

LESS COSTLY
Another reason Mr. Dalgleish expects enrolment to increase is that a student can take senior matriculation for $250 in fees, while first-year university tuition costs $350.

The program is growing fast, but "we just can't keep up with everything people want," he said. He has frequent requests for more courses in drawing and painting, human relations and business management.

"Actually, we need an adult centre of our own. The schools aren't adequate to do the job."

"There are too many people who have to leave the Island for advanced vocational and technical training," he said.

"We need a junior college setup."

More people are coming to night school for more reasons these days, said Mr. Dalgleish. Prime factor, he thinks, is that workers are realizing they must upgrade their academic education to get and keep jobs.

'ALERT, ALIVE'
Some people want to update their training, and others come simply because they have the leisure time.

"And a lot of people just like coming to night school—it keeps them alert and alive," he said.

Worm Only Safe When Seen

By IAN SMITH
The only time you can see the golden nematode is when it's not doing any harm. The rest of the time, you can only see its effects.

The golden nematode is a type of worm—a very small worm—that effectively reduces crops of potatoes, tomatoes and eggplants.

The very mention of the beast is enough to send cold shivers down the spine of a grower, and Vancouver Island farmers and nurserymen are finding out why.

Since discovery of the nematode on a Saanich potato farm over a week ago, all shipments of root crops have been halted from Vancouver Island.

If the embargo is not lifted, it could possibly cut heavily into the nursery and bulb trades.

The cause of it all, the golden nematode, can only be seen with a microscope when it is doing the damage.

It is a funny creature, but agriculturalists are not amused. The thing starts life as a cyst on the surface of various roots, and even then the pear-shaped hump is smaller than the head of a pin.

The cyst, formed from the body of the mother, starts pearly white, and gradually turns through gold and orange into brown, at which time it hatches. This may take 15 years, providing conditions are not right prior to this.

The larvae then leave the cyst and bore their way into the plants, emerging in adulthood to form cysts and start the cycle all over again.

The creature does not exactly run rampant, even at its cell-destroying height. Scientists estimate that an average nematode might advance half an inch in a year, unless it is carried.

That's why authorities are not speeding their soil survey work. The golden nematode is not about to spread like smallpox.

The golden nematode's effect comes in reduction in size of the crop, be it potatoes, tomatoes or eggplants, and there must be a heavy infestation before serious crop reduction will take place.

Even in heavy infestations, it can be destroyed utterly by dumping chemicals such as formaldehyde on the land. This rules the land for some time, but it would be worth it if an infestation could be wiped out entirely.

Authorities will probably use such measures if the one Saanich farm is found to be the only infested area.

But if other areas are found to contain the worm, authorities will seek to control it rather than eradicate it. This will involve use of chemicals such as DD, and crop rotation, which prevents large populations from being established.

When the soil survey is complete, they will know what they have to do. And meanwhile, farmers are keeping their fingers crossed.

Nematode War Termed 'Amateurish'

A city nurseryman has blasted the campaign against the Saanich golden nematode infestation as "amateurish," despite increased government attention to the problem.

"This can become an international calamity of the first order," suggested James De Wilde, owner of Layritz Nurseries, "and the right things are not being done."

A speedup in the government survey of Saanich fields has been ordered meanwhile, following a demand for a crash program to determine whether the infestation is general or restricted to the one farm in Saanich where it was first discovered a week ago.

SPECIAL BUILDING

C. H. Nelson, assistant field crop commissioner for the provincial government, said the survey should be completed by the fall.

A building at Patricia Bay airport has been commandeered as an investigation centre since scientists fear that the infection could spread to the federal government experimental station if work is carried on there.

A meeting has been called for all growers to discuss the nematode at the Dominion Experimental Farm at 8 p.m. Wednesday. "We want to acquaint the people with the problem," said Mr. Nelson.

And fertilizer manufacturer Martin Woodford, who suggested using a type of marigold to combat the nematode, has had so many telephone calls that he has had his number temporarily changed.

Monday's mail brought an additional batch of stamped, self-addressed envelopes from those who wish the seeds. Mr. Woodford has suggested that the marigold gives out a root secretion which destroys the microscopic worms.

Mr. De Wilde, meanwhile, it called for an all-out effort to stop the disease.

"We must work on four things," he said in an interview Monday.

"It is essential that we first find out the cause of the infestation," he suggested. "Why has it appeared simply in this one small location—or is it really more general?"

"The second thing in public health," said Mr. De Wilde, "we need to get people acquainted with this problem so that they know what they're dealing with."

"Third, people should realize that this is of importance to everybody. It's not just Vancouver Island. It could affect the whole country."

"Fourth, there should be co-operation between the government and the growers—and this co-operation is totally lacking right now."

"The answers to some of these problems can often come from the ordinary people rather than the scientists, and the scientists are not going to get the benefit of these ideas, the way things are now."

"We growers are left in the dark, when we should know exactly what's happening."

Shawnigan Lake Ceremony Youth Worker's Labor Honored

By JEAN BAIN

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—The memory of Don Branter of Oak Bay was honored with the dedication of a new building at the George Pringle Memorial camp here Saturday.

Rev. Laura Butler, minister of Metropolitan United Church in Victoria, in her last official act as Chairman of the Victoria Presbytery, officiated at the dedication ceremony of the recently completed "Branter House."

The building was named in memory of Don Branter, of Oak Bay, who was famous for his work with boys' groups and as a leader at boys' camps. Assisting Miss Butler was the Rev. Alec Calder of Oak Bay United Church.

"Branter House" was started in 1961, when the oldest building on the George Pringle campsite, the original farmhouse "Silver Castle," had deteriorated beyond repair.

Camp officials decided a new building to house the permanent staff was needed, and Don Branter took it upon himself to interest AOTS men's clubs of the United Church in raising money to provide the kind of building necessary.

Mr. Branter did not live to see the building erected. He died in March, 1962. A memorial fund in his name collected more than $1,000 and fund-raising by the AOTS clubs carried on.

New work on the building was started in 1963, and due to time and effort of chairman Bob McKee of Victoria, his board of directors, and volunteer labor, the first wing of the building was ready to be occupied by the time camp started that summer.

The second wing was added recently. The completed building has two wings, with four wing, and a main lounge with rooms and bathroom in each fireplace in the centre of the building.

The building is named "Branter House" in Don Branter's memory, and his memory will always live in the hearts of the boys who attended the camps which he directed, and also in the hearts of those who worked with him on the camp committee.

Following the dedication service, Rev. Laura Butler invited Mrs. Branter to be the first person to step across the threshold of the new building which honors her husband's name.

Minutes later, and returned to his Christie address, the policeman said.

On two other occasions the corporal was foiled in his trailing because of heavy traffic, he said.

'Hot Gauze' Clears Patients

A "hot" gauze dressing touched off the rapid evacuation of the patient Royal Jubilee Hospital isolation building Monday.

Even before city fire trucks arrived on the scene, patients had been whisked out of danger by hospital staff.

ON LIGHT BULB
The reason for it all was a seven-year-old child who for some reason crumpled a gauze dressing over a light bulb.

When the heat from the bulb set the dressing smoking, she took it from the bulb, threw it into the waste basket and called a nurse's aid, Mrs. B. Schall.

BACK IN HOUR
Mrs. Schall took one look at the smoke-filled room and blew the whistle.

The rapidly evacuated patients were back in their beds within the hour.

Motorcyclists Helmet Sales Booming

Thursday the helmet law for motorcyclists goes into effect and helmet sales are booming, according to Victoria motorcycle dealers.

"We're just about cleaned out," salesman Joe Brown said Monday.

MOST APPROVED
"About 95 per cent of sales are of helmets of the approved design spoken of in the act."

But what of the many cyclists who bought helmets which are not of approved design, before the act went through?

COSTLY
"If the government sees fit to pass a law forcing people to wear a certain type of helmet, I don't see why people who bought helmets before the act should have to buy new ones. I think the government should pay the shot."

There are people riding around wearing $30 helmets which are not of the approved design. It's going to be expensive to replace them."

Vicious Fire Destroys Garage

Heat from vicious garage fire blistered paint on house at 918 Gorge Road West Monday afternoon and completely destroyed building and contents, worth about $2,000 total. Family of Capt. H. Robbie Robinson was out at time. Fire started at rear of garage, burned part of fence leading to house and damaged adjoining garage owned by John Carr, 2812 Inlet. Passing B.C. Telephone employee and neighbors pushed Mr. Carr's vehicle out of garage. Capt. Robinson's loss included small boat and tenting gear. Saanich fire department is investigating cause.—(William Boucher)

Pinpoints Bad Storms

Lightning Hunter Aids Firemen

By GARRY OAKES

On the radar-like scanner it would appear as an insignificant, thin, short line. But in reality it might be the start of a costly forest fire which could rip through thousands of acres of valuable timber if not checked.

Radio Waves

The thin, short line represents the direction of a fast-moving lightning storm—the cause of more than 35 per cent of B.C.'s forest fires each year, resulting in about $1,000,000 damage.

The equipment is a "lightning hunter"—a radio directional finder using two highly directional antennas.

Tired Driver Fined $85 In Duncan

DUNCAN—Archibald McPherson of Duncan was driving on the Trans-Canada Highway when he "felt tired and pulled over to the side."

When police checked his car they found him asleep at the wheel, an opened bottle of beer between his knees.

He was convicted in magistrate's court of public drinking and driving without due care and attention.

He was fined $85 on the charges.

OBSCENE LANGUAGE

Using obscene language to a police officer on a busy street Saturday afternoon cost Allister Norman Bolton of Shawnigan $30.

Court was told the police officer had explained to occupants of a car in which Bolton was a passenger that it had been a routine check for liquor when the accused addressed the constable in foul language.

Essentially, it is a radio receiver which picks up radio waves from a lightning storm on a frequency of 10 kilocycles. And it is a major breakthrough for B.C. Forest Service in detecting lightning blazes before they can get a firm hold.

The device is the adaptation of a U.S. idea by forest service radio technician Alex Stewart of Victoria.

Now two of the units will be put through a final series of tests to determine their accuracy in pinpointing lightning storms by a triangular method.

A single unit cannot determine distance, only direction so two are being used in separate locations to establish the intersection of the two directional lines.

The information will be fed into a central plotting office and patrol planes will search a vessel, the navigable part is only 24 to 30 feet deep.

The Cannell draws 22 feet, so the crew holds its breath as it passes through the treacherous channel.

Localize Storms
Bob Fielder, a technical forest officer in the service's protection planning division, is taking the units to Cranbrook Wednesday for a month-long series of tests.

Bob is "very optimistic" about the success of the equipment but cautious about its value in saving dollars.

He said it takes two or three days to find a smoldering fire after a lightning storm but if the new equipment can localize a storm, "we should be able to cut this time down considerably."

Long Range
The equipment will be invaluable in the northern 40 per cent of the province not covered by primary lookout towers because of inaccessibility.

Bob anticipates the lightning hunter may have an over-all range of 500 miles, enabling about seven units to cover the entire province.

Each unit will cost between $2,000 and $3,000 and if this summer's tests are satisfactory, it is hoped to have several in operation by next spring.

Hot Spots
Another detection item still in the development stage is an infra-red scanning device which is carried in an airplane and records hot spots on the ground.

It is expected to cost more than $20,000 but it could easily pay off itself by spotting one fire.

Perhaps the next gadget will keep people from leaving cigarettes or campfires burning in the woods.

Bonnie Somers Bride At Oak Bay United

Gold and white was the theme of the candle-light service at Oak Bay United Church uniting in marriage Bonnie Somers, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle D. Somers, 227 Maddison Street, and Mr. Richard Howard, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Howard, 863 Maddison Street.

Rev. A. Calder officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. P. Busfield sang the Wedding Prayer during the signing of the register and Mr. R. Kroger was organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was lovely in an exquisite floor-length gown on train styled along Spanish lines, with tiers upon tiers of scalloped Chantilly lace. Matching lace formed the scalloped neckline and long point sleeves and the hooded skirt was embellished with white aquinas. The bride's mantilla veil of silk illusion edged in Chantilly lace fell from a tiara of seed pearls and crystals and for "something old" she wore an heirloom bracelet belonging to her great grandmother. She carried a bible topped with a cascade of gold cynidium orchids and stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Miss Joanne Somers, bride's sister, and bridesmaids, the Misses Diana Foster, Lynda Robertson and Bobby-Lou Foster, cousins of the bride, were gowned alike in gold sequin tulle and wore wedding ring headpieces and circular veils en tons. They carried cascade bouquets of Tallman roses and feathered champagne carnations.

girl was in a similarly styled frock and carried a basket of Tallman roses and feathered carnations.

Mr. Dave Gawley was best man. Ushering were Mr. Bill Neagarth and Mr. Douglas Howard, bride's brother.

Mr. Don Somers of Saskatoon proposed the toast to his niece at a reception at Holyrood House. A four-tiered gold and white cake centred the bride's table.

For her going-away ensemble the bride wore a deep powder blue suit and model hat. She wore metallic grey accessories and an orchid corsage.

The young couple travelled up-land and to the mainland for their honeymoon and on return will make their home on Springridge Crescent.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: You've received thousands of letters from people, but have you ever received a letter from a hamster? I'm bet this is your first.

Several of us hamsters read your column every day. Our masters like the floor of our cages with your page of the newspaper because they know we are fans. Usually we agree with your advice, but recently you let us down. A young boy asked you to help him persuade his mother that hamsters are desirable pets for children. It seems his mother had the impression that hamsters smell. You said, "I hope your mother will let you have the hamsters because they make wonderful pets, but they do smell."

When we read that, Ann, we were sick. We do not smell. Our cages smell if they are not kept clean, but why blame us for that?

Will you please print my letter and set the record straight? —SIDNEY THE HAMSTER

Dear Sidney: I apologize to every hamster everywhere. It was my advice that smelled. Hamsters, according to all the experts, are indeed odorless, and I'm happy to set the record straight.

Dear Ann Landers: What can a mother say to a 23-year-old son who refuses to accept responsibility for himself? When I tell him he is behaving like a juvenile he says "It's your fault, you raised me."

I raised him all right. His father gave me no help whatsoever—and it shows. When the boy was in school I was the one who kept prodding him to do his chores and his homework. He used to hide behind his father and whine, "Make her leave me alone." My husband would turn to me and say, "Ruth, why don't you quit nagging the boy?"

I know I've failed as a mother but it's too late to do anything about it now. What can I say when my son looks me in the eye and says, "You raised me. It's your fault.—TRIED AND FLOPPED

Dear Tried: You can say, "Yes, I raised you and I'm sorry I didn't do as well as I had hoped to do, but I did my best. And now since we agree that I botched the job I suggest you take over and make something better of yourself. Humans can change and improve."

"The world is full of people who have succeeded in spite of incredibly poor upbringing. Be my guest."

Dear Ann Landers: I am a food editor who has a unique problem. It was caused by Ann Landers.

You recently printed a column about pies and said you were a pie lover. Then you named the cities where the very best pie can be found.

Our city appeared on the list, so I made it my business to find out where you enjoyed the pie and I succeeded in wheedling the recipe out of the reluctant pastry chef in the hotel.

The printers made a mistake and the recipe as it appeared was preposterous, but dozens of women tried anyway. Now I'm afraid to open a letter or pick up the telephone.

One reader screamed, "I just baked the pie that Ann Landers raved about and I'm going to make my family drink it for dinner."

The most irate caller said, "I am taking that miserable failure to my church bake sale today and I shall tell everyone it is Ann Landers' favorite."

Why don't you stick to affairs of the heart—SICK OF GARBAGE PAIL CATASTROPHES. Dear Sick: Don't worry, I will. I received more than 3,000 recipes for pie crusts, a dozen pie tins, rolling pins, pastry knives, flour cloths, and countless cases of shrimping. From now on I promise to stay out of the kitchen.

the friendliest little window in town

Strange things are happening to the familiar telephone booth.

They're coming in a variety of sizes, shapes and materials but all present the friendliest little window in town, and their purpose is always the same—to be where people can use them more conveniently.

You'll see even more of them around as time goes by and they'll be more distinctive too, in their new attractive colors.

All kinds of people use them: people early for appointments, people late for appointments, people who want to make appointments, people who want to break appointments, people who have to check on children, children who have to check on other children, young men who make dates, young women who would like to.

In almost every case it's the convenience that counts. Take your pick! There's bound to be a public phone handy.

Non-Smoking Minister

How Does She Feel?—Fat!

VANCOUVER (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh was asked Sunday how she felt since she stopped smoking two years ago to set an example for the country. "Fat," she replied.

Yachtsmen Twice to Rescue

Choppy seas and windy weather caused two groups to be rescued by local yachtsmen over the weekend.

Vancouver mariner Gordon Barnes and his wife became lost in choppy seas and darkness near Cadboro Bay Friday. The boat's flashing distress light was spotted by a waterfront watcher who reported it to the police.

The sailcraft Argo was guided in by Dick James in his cruiser Lakona II.

A party of nine picnickers was rescued from Sidney Spit Marina. Geoffrey Simpson picked up the remainder in his cruiser Tedora.

The group of five adults and four children was shuttled to the island in a 14-foot open boat, but when it came time to return, a 30-mile-an-hour wind raked the water.

A passing cabin boat answered their call for help and took three of the group to Van Isle Marina. Geoffrey Simpson picked up the remainder in his cruiser Tedora.

Garden Notes

Keep Them Going

By M. V. CHESNUT

Earlier this spring I wrote a series of articles on summer bedding plants and how to use them effectively to enhance the appearance of the garden.

Now that these plants have taken hold and are growing away nicely, our next problem is how to keep them in bloom over the whole summer, for many of our most colorful annuals are inclined to "go for broke"—to shoot the works on one brief but glorious splash of color, then stage a sit-down strike for the rest of the season. These plants must be taken in hand and kindly but firmly taught the virtues of staying on the job.

The condition of the soil is very important here. The garden books seem to assume that everyone does his gardening on a rich but friable loam soil when, in fact, most of us must make do with a far from perfect soil texture. Much of the soil hereabouts contains a high proportion of clay and such a soil, after cultivating and watering, tends to form a crust on the surface. This crust, as it bakes and cracks in the sun, seals off the air supply to the roots, while water runs off rather than sinking in. It is a common thing for plants growing in crusted soil to lose their lower leaves and stop blooming.

The trick here is to break up the crust—to stir and loosen the soil around and between the plants. In a big bed and with wide spacing between the plants, this work can be done standing up with the Dutch hoe or one of its modern substitutes. In smaller and more closely planted beds, there is nothing for it but to get down on your hunkers and stir the soil with a hand fork whenever you see signs of baking and crusting.

With bare soil, this is a never-ending job, for every time it rains or you apply water with a hose, the well-worked surface soil runs together again to form that infuriating crust. This can be prevented quite simply by spreading a one-inch layer of peat moss on the surface between the plants.

By shading and insulating the soil surface from the sun, no baking or cracking can occur, and at the same time, the roots of your plants remain cool and moist.

The brown of the peat moss surface mulch looks most attractive on the beds, providing a pleasing background for the green of the leaves and the color of the flowers. After serving its purpose as an insulating mulch all summer, the peat can be dug in during the fall clean-up, where it will make a vast improvement in the texture of the soil in the bed.

Never allow any of your bedding plants to go to seed, for this is a sure way to shorten the life of your floral display. Someone in the family should be assigned the job of deadheading the flowers—of making the rounds once a week snipping off all faded blooms.

With snapdragons, the first flush of bloom will probably be over by the middle of July. Cut down the faded spike at that time, and the secondary spikes will develop promptly to put on a second show of color in your garden.

With violas and pansies, the initial flowering shoots will be pretty well pooped by the end of July, but there should be plenty of vigorous new shoots pushing outward from the center of the plant. These can put on a grand late show if the old, flowered-out stalks are cut away and a little rich top dressing tucked in around the spread of the foliage.

Verbena and phlox drummondii are peculiar critters in that they can't seem to make up their minds whether they want to be upright plants or trailers. They will often start to straggle rather badly in midsummer, and rather than cut them back, your best bet is to take advantage of this straggling habit.

Arrange the straggling shoots over the surface of the bed and peg them down, using bits of wire bent into overwise "hairpins" to hold them in contact with the soil. Treated in this way, the trailing shoots will take root here and there along their length, and will push up enough flowering side shoots to keep the bed colorful well on into the fall.

STAN DELAPLANE Misses Opportunity

Frogs' Eggs Goody Delight

School closed up for the summer the other day. And all the little monsters were turned loose on the peaceful neighborhood.

A boy about six years old came by this morning and offered to sell me some frogs' eggs.

"I got them down in the creek," he said. He lifted one of the grey, dripping, jelly strings out of the water. Frogs' eggs don't get to me. Pretty goody looking.

"What in the world would I do with them?" I asked.

"Well, you could keep them," he said. He didn't bother with me after a question like that. What else would you do with frogs' eggs? Just having them is enough.

He took his pail and went off to look for a customer with more understanding.

I really should have remembered. Recalled that it is like to dip in the cool creek waters and pull the jelly strings of eggs away from the weeds.

But he caught me flat-footed and memory was rusty.

You don't do anything with frogs' eggs. You just LOOK at them. Lift them up once in a while. Feel the delicious slimy feeling of them.

You don't even sell them. You trade them to people who appreciate frogs' eggs.

The boy offered me frogs' eggs. And I just stood there and asked a silly question.

Minnows are pretty good to collect in the summer. If that boy comes back, I must tell him that. Probably plenty of minnows where he got the frogs' eggs.

You can keep them in the same pail. Just watch them kind of swimming around.

It requires two boys really. To watch them, I mean. Just kind of watch them, that's all. And talk. What about? Well, you know—just talk.

There is a communion of spirit in watching minnows. Feeling frogs' eggs in cool water.

Dragon flies are good to watch, too. But not much fun in catching.

I wish that child would come back. I DO need some frogs' eggs, come to think of it.

A lot of emphasis is put these days on "why." People are worried about youth and they ask them: "Why do you shoot old ladies with your slip gun, Outbert?"

This puts a great strain on Outbert's two-by-two mind. Nobody asked me "why" as I remember. They asked me "what."

"Just what do you think you're doing?"

"Nothing," we said sullenly. "NOTHING. You call that NOTHING!"

They said: "What are you doing with those minnows in the house?" They said: "If you bring another mabe into this kitchen, I'll beat you within an inch of your life!" There was a lot of insecurity. Because you MIGHT get caught.

Consequently, some of us grew up to be cops. And some grew up to be robbers. Bankers and bricklayers and public accountants. It all worked out somehow.

SHEILAH GRAHAM Visits Grubby Pad

Chaplin Needs Bath

LONDON (NANA)—Nineteen-year-old Michael Chaplin has written a book titled, I Couldn't Smoke the Grass on my Father's Lawn. Father is Charlie Chaplin whom Michael has not seen for the past three years.

"Our worlds are different," said Michael with exquisite understatement. "When he comes to London, he stays at the Savoy Hotel. I could hardly visit him like this now could I? They'd throw me out." They would.

I paid a visit to young Chaplin in his $10-a-week apartment on the top floor of a row of drab houses in North London. I was appalled by the poverty and squalor. The winding wooden steps to the two rooms Chaplin and his ex-actress wife Patricia with their ten-month-old baby, Charles, call home, needed cleaning.

The room in which they live—the other room is leased to a friend and his wife was bare except for a soiled mattress in the middle of the room, a pile of dirty laundry in the corner, a rickety chair in which I sank after the long stair climb, a wine bottle which they both use for cigarette ash and a brand new television set. In a window-dressed the baby slept peacefully.

But the greatest shock for me was Chaplin himself. His black, shoulder-length hair was parted in the middle, falling on each side of his nose beyond his bearded chin. When the curtain of hair parted I was surprised by the sensitivity in his attractive hazel eyes.

It is impossible for me to describe his clothes, except that they, Chaplin, hair and all, would have benefited by a heavy dunking in a sudsy-filled, man-size washing machine.

"Is your book about your father?" I asked Michael. "Partly," he replied. "How do you treat him?" "I'm objective. I've admired his work, but he is a terrifying man. Very stern and very opinionated. The book is also about my childhood and my life in London. We came to Europe from Hollywood when I was six."

"I write of the people I met in my father's big, beautiful chalet in Switzerland, people like Noel Coward Graham Greene, of my sisters and brothers—we are a large family, there were two nurses, lots of servants and governesses for the eight children.

"Whether my wife and I have a large family depends on our finances. I've earned some money as an actor—I play a Greenwich Village beatnik in Promise Her Anything with Leslie Caron and Warren Beatty. It's not a big part—seven lines—but I worked for a week."

"I'm now getting together my singing act for the Alhambra in Paris and I have been asked to make a four-week tour of the States for the press department of Promise Her Anything."

"Promise me one thing," I said weakly, "that you won't change your hair style or clothes. I think America should get the full impact of what can happen when a boy rebels against his parents."

"Why did you choose this way of life?" I asked Michael, who is a pleasant, gentle person. "It was not a choice between luxury and poverty. I had no choice. If you want to lead your own life you've got to pay for it."

"I was hopeless at school in Switzerland. I couldn't take it. So I just took off. I left home because it was impossible for me to stay. As long as I wanted to study, my family financed me. But they cut me off completely when I didn't. At first when I went to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts here to learn acting, they paid for the fees. And I want to put this straight. My parents did not object to my being an actor, it was only that I did not finish my education."

Was he looking forward to returning to the land of his birth? "Very much. My sister Geraldine has been there several times since we came to live in Europe. She likes it very much as I am sure I will. But I've grown to love London. You can be anonymous here. It doesn't matter what you do or wear, no one takes any notice. I imagine this is not possible in the States."

It should be interesting for him to find out.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Sunday's column on pronunciation was the last I shall write on the subject for the summer, since I am already swamped with hundreds of letters in response to my previous columns on pronunciation.

These letters are, chiefly, divided into two sorts: those applauding the attempt to maintain a standard against the sloppy, blurred, and illiterate pronunciations of words; and those castigating me as a prig, a pedant, and an arrogant ass in general for presuming that there is only one "correct" way to pronounce many words.

Actually, I presume no such thing. I realize that there may be several equally acceptable ways to pronounce many words; that style and customs change in such matters; that what is "right" in Texas is absurd in Oxford, and vice versa. All language is perpetually in flux.

On the other hand, must we not draw the line somewhere, if our language is not to degenerate into anarchy, idiosyncrasy, and indistinctness? Do we not require some standards of articulation that are commonly agreed upon? If we wholly give way to permissiveness in speech, then do we not lose more in precision and intelligibility than we gain in any other area?

It is noteworthy that even the readers who most violently objected to my lists of "preferred" pronunciations, nevertheless appended their own lists of mispronounced words they found offensive.

Who, for instance, can tolerate "ladies and gentlemen," which is so often heard? Or "liberty" for "library," and "drowned" for "drummed."

Everybody privately draws the line somewhere, with the feeling that some pronunciations are beyond the pale. My lists are not designed to set up a royal edict, rather to encourage us to re-examine such words, and to recognize that some pronunciations have the sanction of tradition and pedigree, and other are gross corruptions.

Pedigree is important, because it tells us where a word came from and what it means. It is wrong to suppress the "gentle" in "gentlemen," for then we lose the original connotation of that word. And if "liberty" becomes the accepted usage, then it sounds like "strawberry" or "logberry," and we have obscured the Latin root meaning "a collection of books."

Knowing the background of words helps us to define and use them accurately and forcefully. If, however, we mangle the pronunciation, they soon cease to resemble their progenitors, and we have lost a valuable clue to their true meaning.

Words create enough mischief in the world already, without our adding to their demonic power by cutting them free from their ancestral roots.

Young Stowaway Escapes Belting

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (AP) — "New I suppose I deserve a belting," said 11-year-old Ian McGilchrist as he returned home Monday after stowing away on a 4,200-mile jet flight to the Philippines.

But Gilbert McGilchrist held his son's hand and didn't look as though he'd give him a thrashing.

"I'm glad he's back and all right," he said.

FIRST CLASS
Ian flew to Manila Saturday in the cargo hold of a Qantas jet. He returned first class wearing a baseball cap and a Filipino shirt and carrying a big wooden spoon and fork given him in Manila by Qantas officials for his mother.

He left home to play football but the game was called off because of rain. He wandered out to the airport, saw the jet, climbed up the net into the cargo hold, settled down in a corner and went to sleep.

KEPT QUIET
"After a while there was a banging and some more cargo came in but no one saw me," he said. "I was a bit frightened, so I didn't say anything. Men closed the door and I was locked in. Just after that I felt the engine going."

"When the plane landed there was more noise. The cargo door opened and two men found me."

TRIP FREE
Ian was taken to hospital in Manila, found to be all right and given hot food.

A Qantas spokesman said Ian would have his trip to Manila free.

The boy's return fare normally would have cost $311.

Northern B.C. Rain-Soaked

FORT ST. JOHN (CP)—Heavy rain soaked northern British Columbia during the weekend, washing out several roads and bridges.

An estimated four inches of rain fell here since the downpour began Friday morning.

Both highways into Hudson Hope were reported washed out, leaving some workers on the nearby Portage Mountain dam project unable to get to work.

Large Crowd Enjoys Outdoor Pops Concert

By JOAN MASON DULLEY

Centennial Square really came to its own Sunday afternoon, when a large crowd in holiday mood gathered to hear a free, informal outdoor concert by the Victoria Symphony.

This was made possible through the generosity of the Lucky Lager Brewing Company, for which Jack Barrackough, Symphony president, expressed gratitude.

ATTRACTIVE SETTING
The gaily-dressed audience for the most part brought folding chairs, but those who didn't sat on the steps or the edge of the fountain, or perched on brick walls.

The orchestra was placed in the attractive setting of the glass front of the McPherson lobby, which made an excellent background.

The music chosen by Otto Werner Mueller was perfect for the occasion, being familiar pops, but unobtrusively, in lieu of program notes, his amusing and informative comments preceded each number added greatly to the pleasure of the afternoon.

An outstanding number was Kreisler's Prachdium and Allegro, originally set for violin and piano, and transcribed by Mr. Mueller for the orchestra.

ENTHUSIASTIC
Jean Angers, concertmaster of the symphony, played this very beautiful and difficult music on an $8,500 Tonnoli violin. The instrument was made in 1880 and has been lent to Mr. Angers. It was shown to great advantage in the cadenza and double stopping. The work was received with much enthusiasm by the audience.

The program took one on a musical tour of Europe, from the stirring and dramatic national-type of music of Finland and The Moldau to the graceful delicate airs of Boccherini's Minuet and Schubert's Rosamunde.

WIND PROBLEM
An unwanted and practically ubiquitous guest at this time of year in Victoria was the wind, which grew more persistent in its attentions as the afternoon wore on. Not contented with blowing music off the stands of these players who had not fastened it securely with clothespins, it whirled through the microphones, distorting the sound.

This had me wondering if the concert would not have been better with no amplification at all. I believe the orchestra can make plenty of volume without artificial means.

A thoroughly enjoyable afternoon concluded with The Blue Danube. Personally, I felt like getting up and dancing!

Counter-Sex Sex Too Much for Court

ROME (AP) — A Rome court has sentenced Italian movie director Renato Castellani, a movie producer and eight cinema hall managers to a suspended two-month term in prison on a charge of making and showing an obscene film.

The trial grew out of a charge by a spectator in Turin, against Castellani's motion picture Controscena (Counter-scene).

The accusation related to an episode in the film dealing with a love affair between a music teacher, played by Italian actor Nino Manfredi, and a business woman, played by American actress Dolores Wetzach.

The sentence said the film was "excessively realistic" in showing the encounters between the two lovers. The complainant maintained the woman appeared twice practically in the nude.

Sentenced to the suspended term with Castellani were producer Luigi Tedeschi and the managers of the cinema halls where the film was shown.

Controscena was condemned as obscene despite the fact the state censorship board had given the film its seal of approval for public performance.

Too Much of Jayne Puts End to Promises

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Moviegoers here who want to see Jayne Mansfield in the movie Promises, Promises get nothing but that.

Places showing the film were raided by police during the weekend for the second time in 10 months.

Operators of a downtown movie house and four district drive-ins were charged with permitting an obscene exhibition.

Dist. Atty. Robert W. Duggan said detectives who were "ordered" to view the movie reported that Miss Mansfield appeared "99 per cent nude" in some scenes. Duggan said the detectives called the film "obscene."

Duggan said that although the movie was an advertisement "for adults only," most of the pictures, especially at the drive-ins, were "children."

"I think the theatre owners have the responsibility to show these movies," he said. "If they don't, someone has to."

Each of the five theatre operators posted $1,000 bond and was released pending a hearing Wednesday.

Lung Infection Killed Cochran

GUATEMALA CITY (AP)—The death of film actor Steve Cochran aboard his schooner at sea off Guatemala was attributed Monday to an acute lung infection.

The body of Cochran, 48, was identified by Dr. Abel Giron, a medical examiner who performed an autopsy on it. Giron said he knew the actor.

He said he could not pinpoint the exact cause of Cochran's illness until he receives a laboratory report, but the lung infection caused paralysis.

THREE WOMEN
Cochran's body was aboard his 40-foot schooner Rogue which was towed into the Guatemalan port of Champerico Saturday. Also aboard were three Mexican women who said the actor died June 15 after he became paralysed and could move only his head.

The women were identified as Eva Montero Castellanos, 25, a seamstress; Eugenia Bautista Zaccarias, 19, a laundress; and Lorena Infante de la Rosa, 14, hired through AD.

The girls told authorities this story: Cochran hired them in Acapulco, Mexico, at the beginning of June to work as maids and helpers aboard the boat. They were chosen from 180 girls who answered an advertisement he had placed in local newspapers.

They left Acapulco June 3 en route down the Pacific Coast to Costa Rica, expecting to reach it in eight days. Cochran had promised to pay their way back to Acapulco.

ACTOR'S HABITS
They said the actor used to get up at 8 a.m., do some exercises and then have breakfast with them.

At night he used to drink two or three whiskeys and sleep on the deck, they said. During the early morning hours he would go down to his cabin.

A bad storm June 12-13 damaged the forecast and stopped the engines. Cochran fixed the mast but soon after complained of pains in his legs which later spread to his chest, arms and head, the girls said.

FEVER RISES
The actor took to his cabin and his fever began to rise. The girls quoted Cochran as saying: "Please don't leave me alone," and at another time, "God, what will happen to you if I should die?"

He instructed them on how to steer the sloop and told them: "One of you must always be at the helm."

Halting Step Taken

By JOHN BENT

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union and Canada have taken a first, halting step toward mutual co-operation in northern development.

Canadian officials appear to believe a worth-while beginning was made with the recent two-week tour of a Canadian delegation led by Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

They are being careful, however, not to leap to any premature conclusions. It is recognized that the plan proposed is still far from implementation.

TOWERING PROBLEMS

The idea of a common attack by the U.S.S.R. and Canada on the towering problems of Arctic and sub-Arctic development isn't new. Tentative soundings had been made more than once in the past, usually by the Canadian side, but nothing ever came of them, basically because of the cold war.

From a defence standpoint, no geographical region of either country is more sensitive than the north. It would be ironic if at times of acute international tension engineers and scientists from the two countries were permitted to look around each other's northern territory.

EXPLORATION EXCHANGE

Early last year, however, the idea was taken up again by the Canadian government. An exploratory exchange of delegations was agreed upon.

Looking for a reason, Canadian diplomats could only speculate that Moscow, which never seems quite able to figure out how to deal with its transpolar neighbor, decided to give it a try for whatever it might be worth — political and practical.

The Canadians' chief objective here was to open the way for a formal agreement covering exchange of specialists. The program would be a comprehensive one, with perhaps 10 scientists and engineers moving each way each year in an uninterrupted flow.

RECIPROCAL PLAN

Canadian specialists would do research work in Soviet laboratories and institutes and vice-versa. There would be reciprocal inspection of specific projects. Then the specialists would return home and put their acquired knowledge to use.

Laing took every opportunity while in the U.S.S.R. to emphasize the need for a binding agreement. Soviet officials refused to commit themselves.

"Georgiy Karavayev, deputy chairman of the state construction agency, Gosstroy, and the Canadians' chief host, spoke in general terms about Soviet-Canadian co-operation. But when Laing and his associates put forward definite proposals for an exchange of professional people, Karavayev replied that the matter could be discussed at the conclusion of a Soviet delegation's return visit to Canada in August.

When Laing proposed that a northern affairs department of floor be allowed to set up shop in Moscow as a liaison man, Karavayev didn't answer.

One reason for the Russians' apologetic approach to the idea of an exchange with Canada may be a suspicion that it would be a one-way street. The Russians may feel they have little to learn from Canada while Canada can learn a lot from the Soviet Union, which has plowed far greater resources into northern development.

Early Bird Calling Will You Wait?

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — The voice had crackled into London after a journey of some 45,000 miles, relayed from a space satellite hovering far above the Atlantic.

"Ottawa, Ont., calling Mr. Bottomley, please," the voice said.

Unruffled by any talk he might have heard of electronic marvels, a British official casually answered back:

"WILL YOU WAIT?"

"Will you wait a minute? I'll go and get Mr. Bottomley for you."

The object of the conversation that flashed in and out of space Monday was Arthur Bottomley, the British secretary for Commonwealth relations.

Calling him as part of the formal inauguration of the new Early Bird telephone link between Canada and Britain was External Affairs Minister Paul Martin.

BY EARLY BIRD

The Canadian end of their conversation was routed through Montreal, site of the headquarters of the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp., which is operating COTC's present trans-Atlantic circuit via Early Bird.

Douglas Bowie, COTC president, told reporters the main effect of the Early Bird connection for Canada will be felt in the future when it "will be extended into a global system." COTC's present transatlantic facilities are "exceedingly good," he said.

Lionel Chevrier, Canada's high commissioner in London, told Mr. Bowie the new route was a "tremendous achievement." Then he exchanged words with the COTC chief in French.

START TODAY

The satellite circuits supplement the service already offered to Britain from Canada on COTC's 33 undersea cable circuits. Actual commercial traffic via the new facilities starts today.

Mr. Bottomley told Mr. Martin he was delighted over the appointment of a Canadian—Arnold Smith—to be the first secretary-general of the Commonwealth.

"You and I talked of this possibility a long time ago," said the British official to his Canadian listener.

The service via satellite will be available about 16 hours a day to cover the busiest time on the route.

Canadian calls are at first being limited to the Montreal and Toronto area on this side and to London on the other.

space transmission station at Andover, Me., but a Canadian station at Mill Village, near Liverpool, N.S., is planned for completion this fall.

"Come over to London and see us soon," said Mr. Chevrier to Mr. Bowie.

"Say hello to Mrs. Bottomley for me," said Mr. Martin in his conversation.

"Goodnight, Arthur." "Goodnight, Paul."

"Au revoir, Lionel." "Bonjour, Douglas."

Parking in Village Studied by Oak Bay

A parking plan for the village area of Oak Bay will come under discussion during meeting July 10 of B Committee on traffic.

The committee will report at the council's next meeting. Plan which will come under consideration was evolved by the municipal engineer and involves use of lots on Monterey south of Oak Bay Avenue; narrowing of sidewalks on Wilnot and Hampshire to make room for angle parking; and conversion of land attached to the apartment building behind the Bank of Montreal.

Consideration will also be given to Monterey Avenue on the north side of Oak Bay Avenue.

Under the over-all plan, an estimated 147 extra parking spaces will be provided.

Immediate consideration will be given to parking behind stores on the south side of Oak Bay Avenue, said Coun. Frances Elford.

BEHIND STORES

She said a number of solutions to the parking problem would be discussed and hoped one could be found to provide some 60 extra parking spaces behind the stores.

She explained that a number of possibilities for the financing would be investigated, should the committee decide on a course of action.

Heroin Case In Court

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI)—Three alleged associates of jail breaker Lucien Rivard were arraigned Monday in Laredo before Federal Judge Ben Connally charged with conspiracy to smuggle heroin into the United States. Joseph Raymond Jones, Charlie Emile Grolesu and Julien Gagnon, all of Montreal, were accompanied by another suspect, James Miller, of Bridgeport, Conn.

All four remained silent when asked what plea they wanted to enter, and Judge Connally ordered a plea of "innocent" entered for each.

The men were indicted after a couple were arrested in October, 1963, in Laredo with 76 pounds and one ounce of heroin—worth about $33,000—concealed in their car.

'Silent' Meeting On Amalgamation

Some kind of agreement between Esquimalt council and View Royal Ratepayers' and Community Association executive was reached Monday but what the agreement was no one is saying.

The meeting was called behind closed doors to discuss amalgamation.

A meeting between municipal affairs minister Campbell and Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtle will be called this morning.

Reeve Wurtle termed the in-camera meeting amicable and said quite a lot was accomplished.

He said a date for further talks between Esquimalt and View Royal would depend on today's talk with the minister.

Reeve Wurtle said representatives had "come to some agreement" but did not elaborate.

The View Royal executive has been instructed to hold talks with Esquimalt on amalgamation then report back to the membership.

Extra Services Added Under Medical Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chiropractors, naturopaths and foot specialists will come under consideration for inclusion in coverage provided by the B.C. Government Employees Medical Services.

Delegates to the Medical Services general meeting here recommended that incoming regulations consider revision of limitations now in force on chiropractic and naturopathic physicians.

C. N. Cook, MS president, said at present there is a dollar limitation on the two branches of treatment.

"Since physicians using these methods are allowed to practise in B.C., the membership felt these limits should be increased," said Mr. Cook. He added that the same reasoning applies to foot specialists.

Naturopathic healing makes use of plant life, exercise and natural agents such as water and light.

Delegates also proposed special benefits for members in isolated areas where doctors' services are not readily available.

They recommended to directors that the plan be extended to cover payment of nurses' fees for services normally provided by doctors.

Minister Protests Hanging

VANCOUVER (CP)—A United Church minister says the public is not supporting abolition of the death penalty because of a fear of early parole.

Rev. Tom Badger, acting president of the B.C. Conference of the United Church, said in an interview Saturday the public feels our penal system lacks the proper facilities and staff to rehabilitate murderers.

He said the reason is a fear that abolition will mean such persons would be released into society as dangerous as when they were imprisoned.

Mr. Badger said he feels if this is true of the penal system, then it is all the more reason for Ottawa to take urgent corrective measures.

Mr. Badger was expanding on a letter he has sent to 70 United Church ministers in Victoria and Vancouver and to political party leaders in Ottawa.

He said the letter urged party leaders to oppose retention of the death penalty, substituting life imprisonment with parole based on when and whether the person is rehabilitated.

Fights Break Out in Crowd of 40,000

Trance 'Carries' Medium to Planet

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) Fighting among skeptics and believers broke out here when several mediums at a spiritualists' meeting went into a trance during which they said they visited another planet.

First-fights took place among some of the 40,000 persons crammed into a stadium here for the meeting and into adjacent streets.

Argentine police clashed with gate-crashers and arrested 12 persons from a group shouting "clowns, fakes."

One medium describing his extra-terrestrial trip said the planet they visited was inhabited by at least one human-type couple.

Another medium said he "brought back" a message from Christ consisting of greetings to the spiritualists' gathering and a plea for just and virtuous living.

The meeting, also broadcast by a local radio station, was organized Sunday night by a Buenos Aires "scientific school" of parapsychology.

Webster's New Collegiate dictionary defines parapsychology as "a branch of psychology concerned with the investigation of evidence for telepathy, clairvoyance, thought transference, and the like."

Jet On Fire Sheds Debris Lands with 153

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, CALIF. (UPI)—A jet airliner with 153 persons aboard caught fire moments after takeoff Monday. It trailed burning debris—including the outboard engine and one-third of the wing—across the heavily-populated San Francisco Peninsula before landing safely here.

One one was injured but one passenger was taken to a hospital for a checkup.

LOST ENGINE

The Hawaii-bound Pan-American World Airways jet lost its right outboard engine after taking off from San Francisco International Airport at 7:35 p.m.

While hundreds watched, the stricken Boeing 747 dropped a burning engine and wing fragments as it neared the Pacific shore.

WING BREAKS

The pilot, Capt. C. H. Kimes, said the right wing from the outboard engine to the tip had all. The engine plunged through the roof of a cabinet shop in San Bruno, narrowly missing several vehicles.

There were no injuries on the ground.

Kimes said the fire broke out when the plane was 500-600 feet off the runway.

"I had no idea what caused it," he said. "It could have been a bird flying into the engine intake or an engine failure."

JURIED PLANE

Kimes said he eventually nursed the staggering jet—laden with 143 passengers and a crew of 10—up to 1,400 feet "and could have gone higher, but the integrity of the wing was in question."

For 19 hair-raising minutes the craft circled over the Pacific, turned inland toward this base 45 miles southeast of San Francisco. The landing gear failed to lower on the first approach and Kimes had to use manual controls to lower it.

Slow Roads

VANCOUVER (CP)—The U.S. is considering setting up a second system of first-class highways for the more leisurely driver, supplementary to the present continental-wide interstate freeway system, Earl A. Blago of Washington, supervising landscape architect for the U.S. National Parks Service, said Monday.

Seattle Wins

U.S. Gets Whale B.C. Won't Bid

Recreation Minister Kenneth Korman Monday refused a plea to join the bidding in the international whale sale at Namu.

Mr. Korman had received a telegram from Homer Severn of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, asking the provincial government to stop the trapped killer whale from being sold to U.S. interests.

But Mr. Korman said, "I wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole," as the sale of the beast was reported.

WAS PROBLEM

Edward Griffin of Seattle marine aquarium paid a reported $2,000 cash for the killer on an "as is" basis, and now it's his problem as far as capturing William Lechowitz and Robert McGarvey are concerned.

They had had quite enough of the whale by the time they sold it Monday. It had gone through scores of salmon as it circled in its net cage on a reef near Namu, and then the telegram from the union had further upset matters.

WRONG APPROACH

Mr. Korman criticized the fishermen for deciding to dispose of their catch by public auction. "This is the wrong approach entirely," said Mr. Korman. "I'll have no part of any auction sale of any whale."

The two fishermen had steadfastly refused all offers, holding representatives from the Vancouver aquarium, Los Angeles Marine Land, and Victoria's Undersea Gardens at arm's length as they sought to raise the price.

ONE ESCAPED

At first they demanded $50,000 for two whales which were trapped in their nets accidentally, but the price dropped when one escaped. Then Marineland dropped out of the bidding due to the difficulties of getting the animal from Namu to Los Angeles. At this stage the Undersea Gardens and Vancouver Aquarium offered $30,000 immediately and a further $20,000 upon the whale's safe arrival, but it was turned down in favor of the Seattle bid.

HELP FLEDGED

Mr. Griffin has asked Dr. Murray Newman of the Vancouver Aquarium to help him in constructing a temporary pen at Namu, and Dr. Newman said he will do "whatever I can."

Said Dr. Newman, "I am disappointed we didn't get it, but a great responsibility has been lifted from our shoulders."

RCMP B.C. Signs Pact

B.C. has signed an agreement with Ottawa for extension of the present agreement for RCMP services in the province until March 31, 1966.

Attorney-General Bonner said the extension is based on the existing formula. The federal government some months ago proposed a change in formula which would have sharply increased the provincial share of RCMP costs.

Ottawa Slights U.K.'s Minister

By FRANK KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The great pressure on the United States and Britain to solve their balance of payment problems could seriously harm the underdeveloped nations of the world, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer said here Monday.

James Callaghan, who has been meeting with Canadian officials here for two days, combined an economic pep talk and some arid dodging at a news conference.

WOULDN'T BITE

He refused to be drawn into the controversy swirling around the failure of Canadian officials to meet him at Uplands Airport when he arrived Saturday.

He said he is "quite happy and working on complaints" about his reception here.

While admitting that no cabinet minister had met him, he smiled and said: "I didn't ask for one."

EMBARRASSED

In the Commons an embarrassed acting prime minister, Paul Martin, and Finance Minister Walter Gordon, ducked opposition questions about the diplomatic faux pas.

Mr. Callaghan, who will now visit Washington, stressed that the British economy is basically strong and getting stronger.

"Too often only the blameworthy are talked about and not the basic strength," he said.

WINNING FIGHT?

He said Britain's balance of payments problem (the spread between the value of exports and imports) is being solved. "British exports are up 4 per cent this year and the imports are down," he said. "We're determined to get our balance of payments right throughout the world."

He said the recently announced trade expansion program with Canada was an example of the efforts being made by the British labor government to "offset this habitual imbalance."

But he stressed several times that if his country and the U.S. pressed too hard to correct their balances (by decreasing

To Be Tabled

Report In By Dorion

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion report on allegations of attempted bribery and coercion against ministerial aides was turned over to Acting Prime Minister Martin late Monday.

An official of the prime minister's office said the federal cabinet will meet this morning to discuss publication of the report and tabling of it in the Commons.

GOES TO CLEEK

The report, signed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court, was handed over by commission counsel Andre Desjardins and Mr. Martin in turn gave it to the acting clerk of the Privy Council.

Official handing over of the report occurred just before 4:45 p.m. EDT after the Commons daily question period ended. During the question period, Mr. Martin had said the report had not yet been received by the government.

TORY QUERY

In the Commons, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked Mr. Martin whether the acting prime minister could confirm newspaper stories Chief Justice Dorion's report would be made available at 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

AFTER RECESS

Did that mean it wouldn't be tabled in the Commons until after a summer recess due to start about Wednesday, Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

Mr. Martin said there was no basis for the suggestion it wouldn't be tabled before the recess.

ARRIVED EARLIER

The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court was handed to Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin about four hours before Mr. Pearson's return.

Pearson Back, Happy

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson arrived back from London Monday night and headed home for some bedtime reading with the Dorion report.

"I'll probably find time to glance at it tonight," the prime minister said with a smile shortly after the RCAF Yukon aircraft carrying him home from the Commonwealth conference touched down at Uplands Airport at 7:44 a.m. EDT.

TO TAKE LOOK

Mr. Pearson said he was happy the report, dealing with charges of attempted bribery and influence peddling against federal ministerial aides, was waiting for him on his return.

After a preliminary look through it, he said he would discuss the report at a cabinet meeting called for 10 a.m. today. He did not know when it would be tabled.

ARRIVED EARLIER

The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court was handed to Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin about four hours before Mr. Pearson's return.

Tax Bill Passes

Liberals Survive Easily

OTTAWA (CP)—With surprising ease, the Liberal minority government survived a showdown vote Monday on its controversial tax changes affecting magazines and newspapers.

By a vote of 102 to 78, the Liberals, with help from two Social Credit MPs and two independents, voted down a New Democratic amendment which would have stalled final approval of the legislation—and possibly brought down the government.

With the amendment out of the way, the bill quickly received final Commons approval and now heads to the Senate.

ON AMENDMENT

The vote, which loomed for a time as a possible cliffhanger, came on an amendment by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Whitby North Centre) to send the 20-class income tax bill back to committee of the House to reconsider the particular section dealing with newspapers and magazines.

It provides that advertising expenditure in any publication aimed at the Canadian market and with more than 25 per cent foreign ownership be disallowed as a deductible tax expense.

TO AID MAGAZINES

The proposal, part of Finance Minister Gordon's budget, is designed to aid Canadian magazines against foreign competition and to guard against foreign takeovers of Canadian daily newspapers.

As indicated Friday when Mr. Knowles introduced his amendment, all four opposition parties—or parts of them—combined against the government.

GRITS RALLY

The amendment was supported by 57 Conservatives, 13 New Democrats, six Creditites and two Social Credit members—party leader Thompson and Guy Marceau (Quebec—Montmorency). They weren't enough, however, to turn back 98 Liberals aided by Social Credit MPs Bert Lebow (Carleton Place) and H. A. Olson (Medicine Hat).

Life Ends Despite Pig Liver

BOSTON (UPI)—A 34-year-old woman kept alive for 13 days with the aid of a pig's liver died late Monday of a gastro-intestinal hemorrhage.

Dr. William V. McDermott Jr., chief of the Harvard surgical unit at Boston City Hospital, said the woman began to fail early in the day and failed to respond to "every possible practical medical aid and surgical technique."

The woman, whose identity was never disclosed, had undergone five porcine liver perfusions in which her blood was pumped through the liver of a dead pig. Her own liver had ceased to function.

BET NEW RECORD

The 13 days she remained alive after entering the hospital near death was a medical record for the new technique. In life previous attempts to save life with the pig's liver technique, no patient had survived longer than 12 days.

During her fight for life, the woman's condition had improved to the point where she was able to watch television, eat solid foods and sit up in bed.

"Unfortunately, and in spite of the temporary improvement which resulted from the support of the porcine liver perfusions, the patient's own liver could not resume sufficient function," Dr. McDermott said.

Italian Surprise

Castro Treasures Prove to Be Junk

OMILAN, Italy (UPI)—A shipment of art "treasures" belonging to Cuban dictator Fidel Castro has turned out to be "a bunch of worthless junk," customs officials said Monday.

The so-called treasure chest was shipped from Cuba to Iranian art dealer Mahmud Mowlazadeh here. Customs held up the shipment for some time and it was finally opened by guards Monday while representatives of the Italian government's fine arts commission watched.

Mowlazadeh was not present. His son said the art dealer was out of town. Mowlazadeh had said earlier he did not believe the shipment was of any exceptional value.

However, it appeared to be even less than the art broker had expected. The customs office said the shipment contained pieces of marble, chalk, a vase with a price of four dollars marked on the bottom "and even a stove." There were also some silver pieces and silver-plated goods "but nothing exceptional," officials said.

Teen-Age Sex Case

Former Minister Granted Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal granted a new appeal Monday to Russell Horneburg, 44, a former United Church minister at Chatham, Ont., against a conviction on five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

The court did not set a date, but Horneburg's lawyer, Charles Dubin of Toronto, said the appeal will be argued before the court "sometime in the fall."

Horneburg was sentenced to a year in prison Nov. 16, 1964, after a trial in Chatham where 14 teen-agers testified he aided them in having sexual intercourse in Park Street United Church where he was minister.

The new appeal will be the former minister's second attempt at a retrial. His first appeal was granted Nov. 26, 1964, and denied June 23, 1965, by Mr. Justice Eric Gauthier of the Ontario Supreme Court after two days of argument.

Horneburg's name was dropped at his own request from the ministerial roll of the United Church of Canada at the annual conference in London, Ont., June 5.

NOT SEX CASE

Mr. Dubin asked for the new appeal on the grounds "the case contained points of law suspect to the Juvenile Delinquency Act which should be examined by the court."

"This is not a sex case and I believe a new appeal could be granted on corroboration as a point of law."

Granting the new appeal, Chief Justice Dana Porter described the case as unique and said:

"I don't believe a case of this nature has ever been heard before the courts and I think an appeal should be given."

Union Pact Wins

B.C. Court of Appeal has upheld a Labor Relations Board ruling that certifies a pact of three unions as bargaining agent for workers at Zeballos Mines Ltd.

The three unions are Local 213 of the Teamsters, Local 115 of the International Union of Operating Engineers, and Local 146 of the International Tunnel and Rockworkers Union.

The LRB awarded the pact unless the contract, saying it was satisfied they represented the majority of the workers.

Producers Hit Pricing

Dairymen Angry

DUNCAN — Island Milk Producers Organization claims dairy farmers are "once again behind the eight-ball" following rumors of a price increase to consumers by distributing companies.

A newsletter from the organization says: "It is time to demand more aggressive and direct action to put producers on the profit side of the ledger."

The group claims producers should have made an immediate effort to have the producer price of milk increased before distributors entered into a new contract with their employees.

"The thought was that distributors would use the almost-certain wage increase to increase the retail price of milk," the organization said after such a price hike, producers are told by distributors that "the consumer would refuse to pay a further increase to cover a raise to the producer."

The producers said while cost to the producer continues to rise, the consumers have again increased.

"How long can this condition be accepted?" the organization demands.

A meeting of producers will be held in the Duncan Agricultural Hall, Wednesday.

Water Needs Spark Plan

LADYSMITH — Town Council took preliminary steps toward the connecting of two lakes to increase Ladysmith — Salsair water supply Monday.

Mayor Kay Groschel and Ald. Tom Davidson reported on a meeting in Victoria with government officials.

The meeting concerned the proposed connecting of Stocking Lake, Ladysmith's present water supply with nearby Hertz Lake by a channel or tunnel.

LONG RANGE — This would provide the Ladysmith-Salsair area with enough water for the next 20 years, Ald. Davidson said.

"The government doesn't want to take the water from us. It just wants an assurance that we will have enough water," he said.

It was noted that Ladysmith and Salsair would be a valuable asset and would benefit from the system.

SAME SYSTEM — Both communities share the same water system, administered under separate boards.

The government has presented a brief on the plan to council.

In return, Ladysmith is preparing its own brief.

Council has hired the Naimino engineering firm of Willie, Cumliffe, and Tait to do the survey.

NOT ENOUGH — Water from the project would not be enough for future generations, Ald. Davidson noted.

"Future generations may have to take a hard look at Cowichan Lake as a water supply for the Duncan-North Cowichan-Ladysmith area."

SWARTZ BAY — Two swallows are keeping the Fullard-Swartz Bay ferry free of mosquitoes, guests and other bugs sailors on the boat run reported Monday.

New Camp House Honors Branter

By JEAN RAIN

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — The memory of Don Branter of Oak Bay was honored with the dedication of a new building at the George Pringle Memorial camp here Saturday.

Rev. Laura Butler, minister of Metropolitan United Church in Victoria, in her last official act as Chairman of the Victoria Presbytery, officiated at the dedication ceremony of the recently-completed "Branter House."

The building was named in memory of Don Branter, of Oak Bay, who was famous for his work with boys' groups and as a leader at boys' camps.

Assisting Miss Butler was the Rev. Alec Calder of Oak Bay United Church.

"Branter House" was started in 1961, when the old building on the George Pringle campus, the original farmhouse "Silver Castle," had deteriorated beyond repair.

Camp officials decided a new building to house the permanent staff was needed, and Don Branter took it upon himself to interest AOTS men's clubs of the United Church in raising money to provide the kind of building necessary.

Mr. Branter did not live to see the building erected. He died in March, 1962. A memorial fund in his name collected more than $1,000 and fund-raising by the AOTS clubs carried on.

New work on the building was started in 1963, and due to time and effort of chairman Bob McKee of Victoria, his board of directors, and volunteer labor, the first wing of the building was ready to be occupied by the time camp started that summer.

The second wing was added recently. The completed building has two wings, with four rooms and bathroom in each wing, and a main lounge with fireplace in the centre of the building.

The building is named "Branter House" in Don Branter's memory, and his memory will always live in the hearts of the boys who attended the camps which he directed, and also in the hearts of those who worked with him on the camp committee.

Following the dedication service, Rev. Laura Butler invited Mrs. Branter to be the first person to step across the threshold of the new building which honors her husband's name.

Nanaimo Area Delegates Favor Regional District

NANAIMO—Thirty delegates representing 14 areas surrounding Nanaimo met Monday night and will go back to their ratepayers recommending the formation of a regional district, and that serious consideration be given to a district municipality.

The recommendations are the result of a year-long study made by a nine-member steering group, consisting of chairmen Tony Poje, Rod Glen, Charlie Rudolph, Joyce Nash, Jack Parker, Alex Vranoski, John Carruthers, Gordon Blake, and Mervyn Wilkinson.

Committee members represented every improvement district from Lantzville to Cassidy.

TO INCLUDE SCHOOLS
Ideally the regional district will include school districts 68 and 69, and to achieve this aim the steering committee was authorized to contact representatives in the Parksville-Qualicum-Cowichan area.

This large regional district would serve a population of 40,000 and once the people had decided this is the form of local government they would prefer, the provincial government under its new legislation amending the Municipal Act, would draw up the letters patent.

These would decide over what services the district would have jurisdiction.

B.C. WANTS OUT

Chairman Poje told the delegates the government was anxious to get out of the local government field, especially zoning, planning, ambulance and hospital, and eventually a regional district could be forced upon them.

The steering committee recommended the regional district.

He was convicted in magistrate's court of public drinking and driving without due care and attention.

He was fined $85 on the charges.

OBSCENE LANGUAGE

Using obscene language to a police officer on a busy street Saturday afternoon cost Allan Norman Bolton of Shawigan $30.

Court was told the police officer had explained to occupants of a car in which Bolton was a passenger that it had been a routine check for liquor when the accused addressed the constable in foul language.

F. P. George of Kokislah pleaded guilty to three charges: driving with no driver's license, no insurance, and passing on a single solid line, and was fined $65. His right to obtain a driver's license was suspended for three months.

Loggers Move to Construction

B.C. Sold Bill of Goods IWA Warns Peterson

PORT ALBERNI—The labor department has been sold a bill of goods, Maurice Corbell, financial secretary of Local 1-85 IWA, said as he claimed that a statement issued by labor minister Leslie R. Peterson is an attempt to convince people of B.C. that the province is short 8,000 loggers.

He was referring to a release announcing the plan for a school for loggers.

Mr. Corbell made public the contents of a letter he has written to Mr. Peterson.

"It is our opinion that your department has been sold a bill of goods by the forest industry," the letter said. "Had you consulted with the International Woodworkers of America you would have found out this province is not short 8,000 loggers but rather 8,000 loggers have changed their places of employment."

"Had you made an attempt to investigate the reasons for the change in occupation you would have discovered why skilled loggers are moving from the forest industry to the construction industry where conditions of work and take-home pay are much higher."

"Had the logging industry been more reasonable at the bargaining table in the past 10 years, then the problems of sub-standard rates of pay, board and lodging, travel time and fare allowances would have been resolved."

Loggers Getting Less

"Currently loggers are receiving eight hours pay for 10 hours spent on the job, where the construction crews receive partial to partial pay."

"Currently construction crews are receiving free board and travel costs to their place of employment, whereas in comparison loggers are paying $75 a month for board and paying as high as $110 from their home to their place of employment and return and neither of these items are deductible for income tax purposes."

"When it comes to rates of pay, heavy machine operators and skilled mechanics are $5 to 40 cents per hour less than in the construction trades and while the IWA has been attempting to retain the semblance of a 40-hour-week, the department of labor has allowed the construction jobs on the Columbia and the Peace to operate seven days a week with unlimited daily work schedules."

Argument Not Borne Out

"Your argument that the logging industry does not receive its fair share of monies allocated for training purposes is not borne out by the facts. Were the companies inclined to be more co-operative more money could be found without resorting to a tax-supported training school as you suggest."

"Provincial government monies are being used to train everything from forestry engineers to heavy duty mechanics and millwright training programs could be solved if management were not so adamant in having the plans drawn up merely to their own satisfaction."

"We do not support a tax-supported training centre when the responsibility for training extra loggers falls on the shoulders of the company and a small increase in crew in each logging camp would take care of any shortage that should exist."

"We think, however, that the 8,000 loggers are available in B.C. and would return to the logging industry if conditions of employment were made more attractive."

Museum Open Today In Campbell River

Police Movies Not Allowed In Bootleg Case

NANAIMO—Movie film was not allowed as evidence Monday in Nanaimo magistrate's court when Mrs. Anne Marie Devlin, 2600 Christie Street, was fined $300 for a first offence of bootlegging.

Magistrate Eric Winch also ruled out movies later in the day when her husband, Wilfred Chuck Devlin, faced the same charge. The magistrate said the Crown had not established continuity between the time the film was taken and presented in court.

Cpl. Robert Dean, RCMP, stated he sent the film to Vancouver for processing. Defence attorney Harry Rankin of Vancouver said the film could have been edited without the corporal's knowledge.

The trial of Wilfred Devlin was adjourned until today after a corporal of the Nanaimo RCMP detachment testified he had followed Devlin on two occasions on April 4 to 380 Dufferin and 240 St. George Streets when he had seen Devlin take beer cases into the homes.

After being admitted to the homes Devlin left two or three minutes later and returned to his Christie address, the policeman said.

On two other occasions the corporal was followed in his trailing because of heavy traffic, he said.

HOUSE SEARCHED
The Devlin house was searched and three bottles of rum and one party-used bottle of rum were found in the bedroom.

Two of the bottles were found behind a dresser, the corporal said.

Monday morning Mrs. Devlin, 45, was found guilty after George Allan Rogers, Nanaimo B.C., admitted he had purchased a case of beer from her.

CHEMAINUS—North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton has called for "only constructive criticism" in dealing with a new bylaw to extend the local sewer system.

A meeting of Chemainus ratepayers heard their new president Louis Shelling and various officials give views on the extension.

Reeve Morton said cost of the

Mr. Shelling said: "It is in the interest of Chemainus and her citizens to gain all information as to the best system within financial reach, before the bylaw comes up for approval."

Jet On Fire Sheds Debris Lands with 153

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—A jet airliner with 153 persons aboard caught fire moments after takeoff Monday. It trailed burning debris—shedding the outboard engine and one-third of the wing—across the heavily-populated San Francisco Peninsula before landing safely here.

One one was injured but one passenger was taken to a hospital for a checkup.

LOST ENGINE
The Hawaii-bound Pan-American World Airways jet lost its right outboard engine after taking off from San Francisco International Airport at 2:35 p.m.

While hundreds watched, the stricken Boeing 707 dropped a burning engine and wing fragments as it neared the Pacific shore.

WING SHEDS

The pilot, Capt. C. H. Kimes, said the right wing from the outboard engine to the tip fell off. The engine plunged through the roof of a cabinet shop in San Bruno, narrowly missing several workmen.

There were no injuries on the ground.

Kimes said the fire broke out when the plane was 500-600 feet off the runway.

"I had no idea what caused it," he said. "It could have been a bird flying into the engine intake or an engine failure."

NURSED PLANE

Kimes said he eventually nursed the staggering jet—laden with 143 passengers and a crew of 10—up to 1,400 feet "and could have gone higher, but the integrity of the wing was in question."

For 19 hair-raising minutes the craft circled out over the Pacific, turned inland toward its base 45 miles northeast of San Francisco. The landing gear failed to lower on the first approach and Kimes had to use manual controls to lower it.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The U.S. is considering setting up a second system of first-class highways for the more leisurely driver, supplementary to the present continuous wide Interstate highway system, Earl A. OTTAWA — The great pressures on the United States and Britain to solve their balance of payment problems could seriously harm the underdeveloped nations of the world, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer said here Monday.

James Callaghan, who has been meeting with Canadian officials here for two days, combined an economic pep talk and some artful dodging at a news conference.

WOULDN'T BITE

He refused to be drawn into the controversy swirling around the failure of Canadian officials to meet him at Uplands Airport when he arrived Saturday.

He said he is "quite happy" about his reception here.

While admitting that no cabinet minister had met him, he smiled and said: "I didn't ask for one."

EMBARRASSED

In the Commons an embarrassed acting prime minister, Paul Martin, and Finance Minister Walter Gordon, ducked opposition questions about the diplomatic faux pas.

Mr. Callaghan, who will now visit Washington, stressed that the British economy is basically strong and getting stronger.

"Too often only the blamers are talked about and not the basic strength," he said.

WINNING FIGHT?

He said Britain's balance of payments problem (the spread between the value of exports and imports) is being solved. "British exports are up four per cent this year and its imports are down," he said. "We're determined to get our balance of payments right throughout the world."

He said the recently announced trade expansion program with Canada was an example of the efforts being made by the British labor government to "offset this habitual imbalance."

But he stressed several times that if his country and the U.S. prepared too hard to correct their balances (by decreasing

James Callaghan, who has been meeting with Canadian officials here for two days, combined an economic pep talk and some artful dodging at a news conference.

WOULDN'T BITE

He refused to be drawn into the controversy swirling around the failure of Canadian officials to meet him at Uplands Airport when he arrived Saturday.

He said he is "quite happy" about his reception here.

While admitting that no cabinet minister had met him, he smiled and said: "I didn't ask for one."

EMBARRASSED

In the Commons an embarrassed acting prime minister, Paul Martin, and Finance Minister Walter Gordon, ducked opposition questions about the diplomatic faux pas.

Mr. Callaghan, who will now visit Washington, stressed that the British economy is basically strong and getting stronger.

"Too often only the blamers are talked about and not the basic strength," he said.

WINNING FIGHT?

He said Britain's balance of payments problem (the spread between the value of exports and imports) is being solved. "British exports are up four per cent this year and its imports are down," he said. "We're determined to get our balance of payments right throughout the world."

He said the recently announced trade expansion program with Canada was an example of the efforts being made by the British labor government to "offset this habitual imbalance."

But he stressed several times that if his country and the U.S. prepared too hard to correct their balances (by decreasing

To Be Tabled

Report In By Dorion

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion report on allegations of attempted bribery and coercion against ministerial aides was turned over to Acting Prime Minister Martin late Monday.

An official of the prime minister's office said the federal cabinet will meet this morning to discuss publication of the report and tabling of it in the Commons.

GOES TO CLERK

The report, signed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorian of the Quebec Superior Court, was handed over by commission counsel Andre Desjardins and Mr. Martin in turn gave it to the acting clerk of the Privy Council.

Official handing over of the report occurred just before 4:45 p.m. EDT after the Commons daily question period ended. During the question period, Mr. Martin had said the report had not yet been received by the government.

TORY QUERY

In the Commons, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked Mr. Martin whether the acting prime minister could confirm newspaper stories Chief Justice Dorian's report would be made available at 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

AFTER RECESS

Did that mean it wouldn't be tabled in the Commons until after a summer recess due to start about Wednesday, Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

Mr. Martin said there was no basis for the suggestion it wouldn't be tabled before the recess.

Pearson Back, Happy

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson arrived back from London Monday night and headed home for some bedtime reading with the Dorion report.

"I'll probably glance at it tonight," the prime minister said with a smile shortly after the RCMP Yuhon aircraft carrying him home from the Commonwealth conference touched down at Uplands Airport at 7:44 h.m. EDT.

TO TAKE LOOK

Mr. Pearson said he was happy the report, dealing with charges of attempted bribery and influence peddling against federal ministerial aides, was waiting for him on his return.

After a preliminary look through it, he said he would discuss the report at a cabinet meeting called for 10 a.m. today. He did not know when it would be tabled.

ARRIVED EARLY

The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorian of Quebec Superior Court was handed to Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin almost four hours before Mr. Pearson's return.

OTTAWA (CP)—With surprising ease, the Liberal minority government survived a showdown vote Monday on its controversial tax changes affecting magazines and newspapers.

By a vote of 103 to 73, the Liberals, with help from two Social Credit MPs and two independents, voted down a New Democratic amendment which would have stalled final approval of the legislation—and possibly brought down the government.

With the amendment out of the way, the bill quickly received final Commons approval and now heads to the Senate.

ON AMENDMENT

The vote, which loomed for a time as a possible cliffhanger, came on an amendment by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) to send the 25-clause income tax bill back to committee of the House to reconsider the particular section dealing with newspapers and magazines.

It provides that advertising expenditure in any publication aimed at the Canadian market and with more than 25 per cent foreign ownership be disallowed as a deductible tax expense.

TO AID MAGAZINES

The proposal, part of Finance Minister Gordon's budget, is designed to aid Canadian magazines against foreign competition and to guard against foreign takeovers of Canadian daily newspapers.

As indicated Friday when Mr. Knowles introduced his amendment, all four opposition parties—or parts of them—combined against the government.

GRITS RALLY

The amendment was supported by 57 Conservatives, 13 New Democrats, six Creditors and two Social Credit members—party leader Thompson and Guy Marceau (Quebec—Montreal). They weren't enough, however, to turn back 98 Liberals aided by Social Credit MPs Bert Lebow (Carleton Place) and H. A. Olson (Medicine Hat).

Life Ends Despite Pig Liver

BOSTON (UPI)—A 34-year-old woman kept alive for 18 days with the aid of a pig's liver died late Monday of a gastro-intestinal hemorrhage.

Dr. William V. McDermott Jr., chief of the Harvard Medical Unit at Boston City Hospital, said the woman began to fail early in the day and failed to respond to "every possible practical medical aid and surgical technique."

The woman, whose identity was never disclosed, had undergone five previous liver operations in which her blood was pumped through the liver of a dead pig. Her own liver had ceased to function.

SET NEW RECORD

The 18 days she remained alive after entering the hospital near death was a medical record for the new technique, in six previous attempts to save life with the pig's liver technique, no patient had survived longer than 12 days.

During her fight for life, the woman's condition had improved to the point where she was able to watch television, eat solid foods and sit up in bed.

"Unfortunately, and in spite of the temporary improvement which resulted from the support of the porcine liver perfusions, the patient's own liver could not resume sufficient function," Dr. McDermott said.

Italian Surprise

Castro Treasures Prove to Be Junk

OTILAN, Italy (UPI)—A shipment of art "treasures" belonging to Cuban dictator Fidel Castro has turned out to be "a bunch of worthless junk," customs officials said Monday.

The so-called treasure chest was shipped from Cuba to Iranian art dealer Mahmoud Mowla-zadeh here. Customs held up the shipment for some time and it was finally opened by guards Monday while representatives of the Italian government's fine arts commission watched.

Mowla-zadeh was not present. His son said the art dealer was out of town. Mowla-zadeh had said earlier he did not believe the shipment was of any exceptional value.

However, it appeared to be even less than the art broker had expected. The customs office said the shipment contained pieces of marble, chalk, a vase with a price of four dollars marked on the bottom "and even a stove." There were also some silver pieces and silver-plated goods "but nothing exceptional," officials said.

Vets' Raise Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill authorizing a 10-per-cent increase in war veterans' allowances received final approval in the Commons Monday night.

The increase is retroactive to last Sept. 1 when it was first announced. About 50,000 veterans, widows and orphans now get $21,500,000 a year in allowances.

Fishermen Reject Price

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's net fishermen have rejected the latest prices offered by the fisheries association of B.C. for the next two years.

The negotiating committee of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.), in making the announcement Monday, said talks will be resumed Wednesday with the association, representing the packing companies.

Teen-Age Sex Case

Former Minister Granted Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal granted a new appeal Monday to Russell Horburgh, 44, a former United Church minister at Chatham, Ont., against a conviction on five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

The court did not set a date, but Horburgh's lawyer, Charles Dublin of Toronto, said the appeal will be argued before the court "sometime in the fall."

Horburgh was sentenced to a year in prison Nov. 14, 1964, after a trial in Chatham where 14 teen-agers testified he aided them in having sexual intercourse in Park Street United Church where he was minister. The new appeal will be the former minister's second attempt at a retrial. His first appeal was granted Nov. 24, 1964, and denied June 23, 1965, by Mr. Justice Eric Moorhouse of the Ontario Supreme Court after two days of argument.

Horburgh's name was dropped from his own request from the ministerial roll of the United Church of Canada at the annual conference in London, Ont., June 5.

"NOT SEX CASE"

Mr. Dublin asked for the new appeal on the grounds "the case contained points of law suspect to the Juvenile Delinquency Act which should be examined by the court."

"This is not a sex case and I believe a new appeal could be granted on corroboration as a point of law."

Granting the new appeal, Chief Justice Duna Porter described the case as unique and said:

"I don't believe a case of this nature has ever been heard before the courts and I think an appeal should be given."

Three Records Set

By EDDY GILMORE

Games flew the four-seater from Elkhart, Ind., via Boston, St. Pierre, St. Pierre Miquelon off Newfoundland, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland.

"I'm not a professional pilot," said Games. "I'm a sort of professional amateur." His mission was to bring the small flying boat here for Australian William Riley. "He delivered it all right," said Riley, "but what a flight."
